FOREWORD

We have sought to tell the story of '31 in a clear, concise, simple, yet withal, in a beautiful manner; our every effort has been bent to describe impartially the work of individuals and organizations; to make more interesting and complete the picture of campus life, we have introduced innovations in form and content, and to the best of our ability presented the significant in the most original and artistic patterns. As a natural setting for the tale of student accomplishments, we have linked together in the art theme of the book the city of Detroit and the University. It was our purpose to show the cultural, social and architectural relationships existing between the municipality and its university, how the educative influence of the classrooms and extra-curricular activities of the one complement and assist the educative influence of the libraries, museums and theatres of the other. Of our completed work we have but one thing to say: If in thumbing the pages of this book you feel that each phase of campus life has been treated adequately, fairly and tastefully, and that the Tower of 1931 is worthy of a place of honor among the Towers of other years—then we are content that our hours of labor in its compilation have been indeed fruitful.

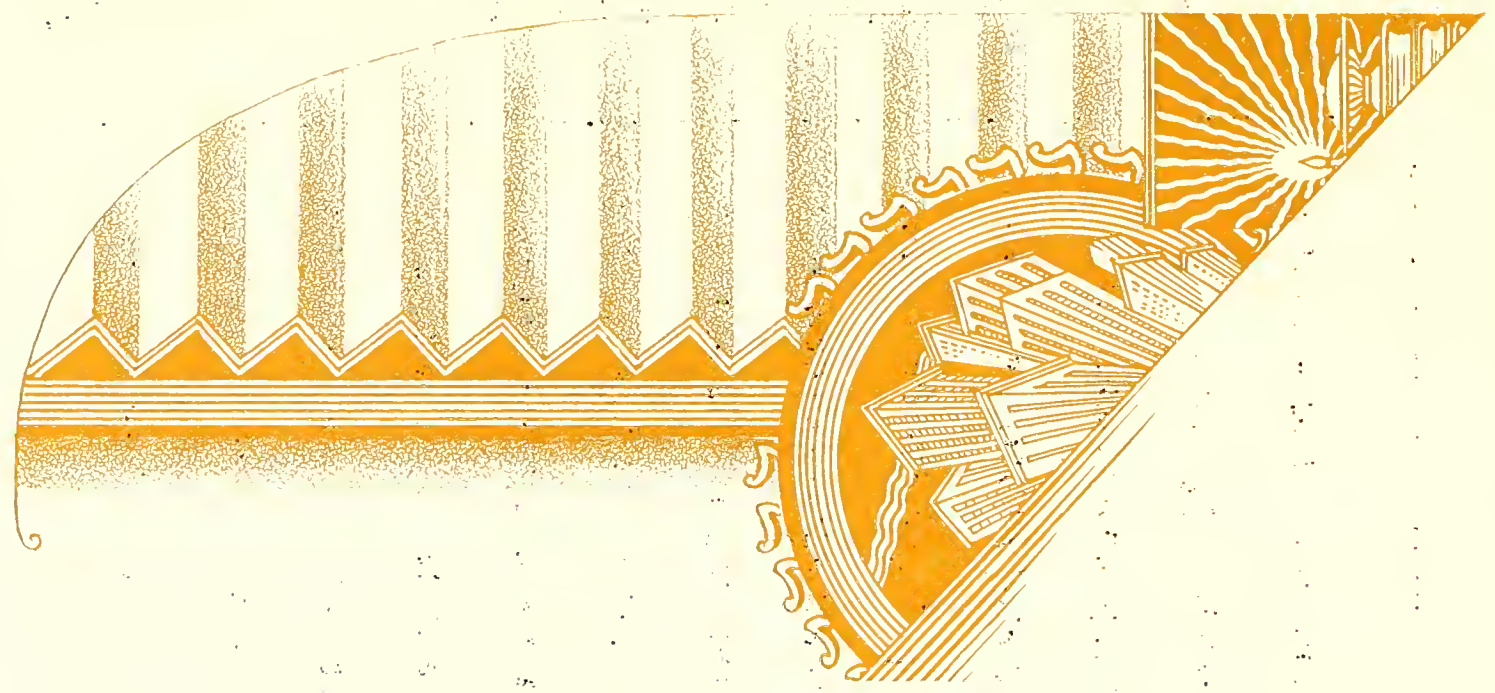
EDICATION

To pay a debt of gratitude to a member of the faculty for his long and distinguished service; to honor an outstanding scholar whose earnest pursuit of learning has been for many years a bright example to the student body; to recognize publicly a dean whose genius for organization has given his college a national rating; and finally, to demonstrate our appreciation of one whose kindliness of heart has made more smooth and pleasant the difficult paths of scholastic endeavor, we respectfully dedicate the 1931 Tower to our friend and counselor—Dr. Carl H. Seehoffer, Dean of the College of Day Commerce and Finance.



UNIVERSITY

The University—the City of Detroit, the student body—the vocations, social and political, professional and financial of our municipality—here is a common bond of interests welding together for mutual benefit our city and our university. Men of integrity to represent the best interests of the people, able men to handle the monies of our industrial commonwealth, clean-minded men to teach the young, efficient men to serve in the courts, trained men of this calibre pass annually through Alma Mater's portals and assume the responsibilities of community life.

THE STORY OF THE UNIVERSITY

Few legends of mythology have embodied more enchantment than the one hundred year period preceding the present location of the University of Detroit. For that epoch embraces the nucleus, the beginning of an institution we now esteem and revere.

The year 1835 witnessed the first pronounced movement by the government to make the present campus, then a swamp, inhabitable. Little came of it, however, and it was not until the early fifties that anything of importance occurred. At that time county officials constructed a system of drainage ditches which diverted the water of the swamp to the lake.

It remained, however, for settlers, among them two farmers, Messrs. Kublick and Horkey, to further the reclamation process of the district. How they accomplished the feat in the face of almost unsurmountable odds, is a beautiful tale. That they did is a reality.

Exactly ten years ago the University became sole owner of the once uninhabitable swamp—now prosperous acreage. Not a single modern dwelling stood within the district; not a street car or a bus covered the territory; not a paved road afforded access to the plot. Indeed, there was little to indicate that the district was not an unexplored region.

But it was not long—in 1922, in fact—until the present campus began to take form. The turning of the first sod on July 1, 1922, marked the opening of a stupendous building program. The stadium was completed in 1923. Soon the Faculty residence, the Commerce and Finance, the Physics, the Chemistry, and the Engineering buildings appeared. By 1926 the University memorial tower had reared its head above the campus. A new and beautiful institution was born!

Since 1926 the progress has been continued. The second largest and most complete wind tunnel has been installed; the intensive beautification of the campus grounds has been forwarded, and many of the modern courses of study have been introduced. Equipment and laboratory facilities have likewise been extended, until the University today has assumed a ranking unparalleled in the world.

A bright and cheery future awaits. For in the next few years a revival of the past building program is promised. A new medical college, a spacious field house, a dental college, an astronomical observatory, a university hospital, an enormous research laboratory, a new library, and various other buildings loom on the horizon. Dreams? Hardly.

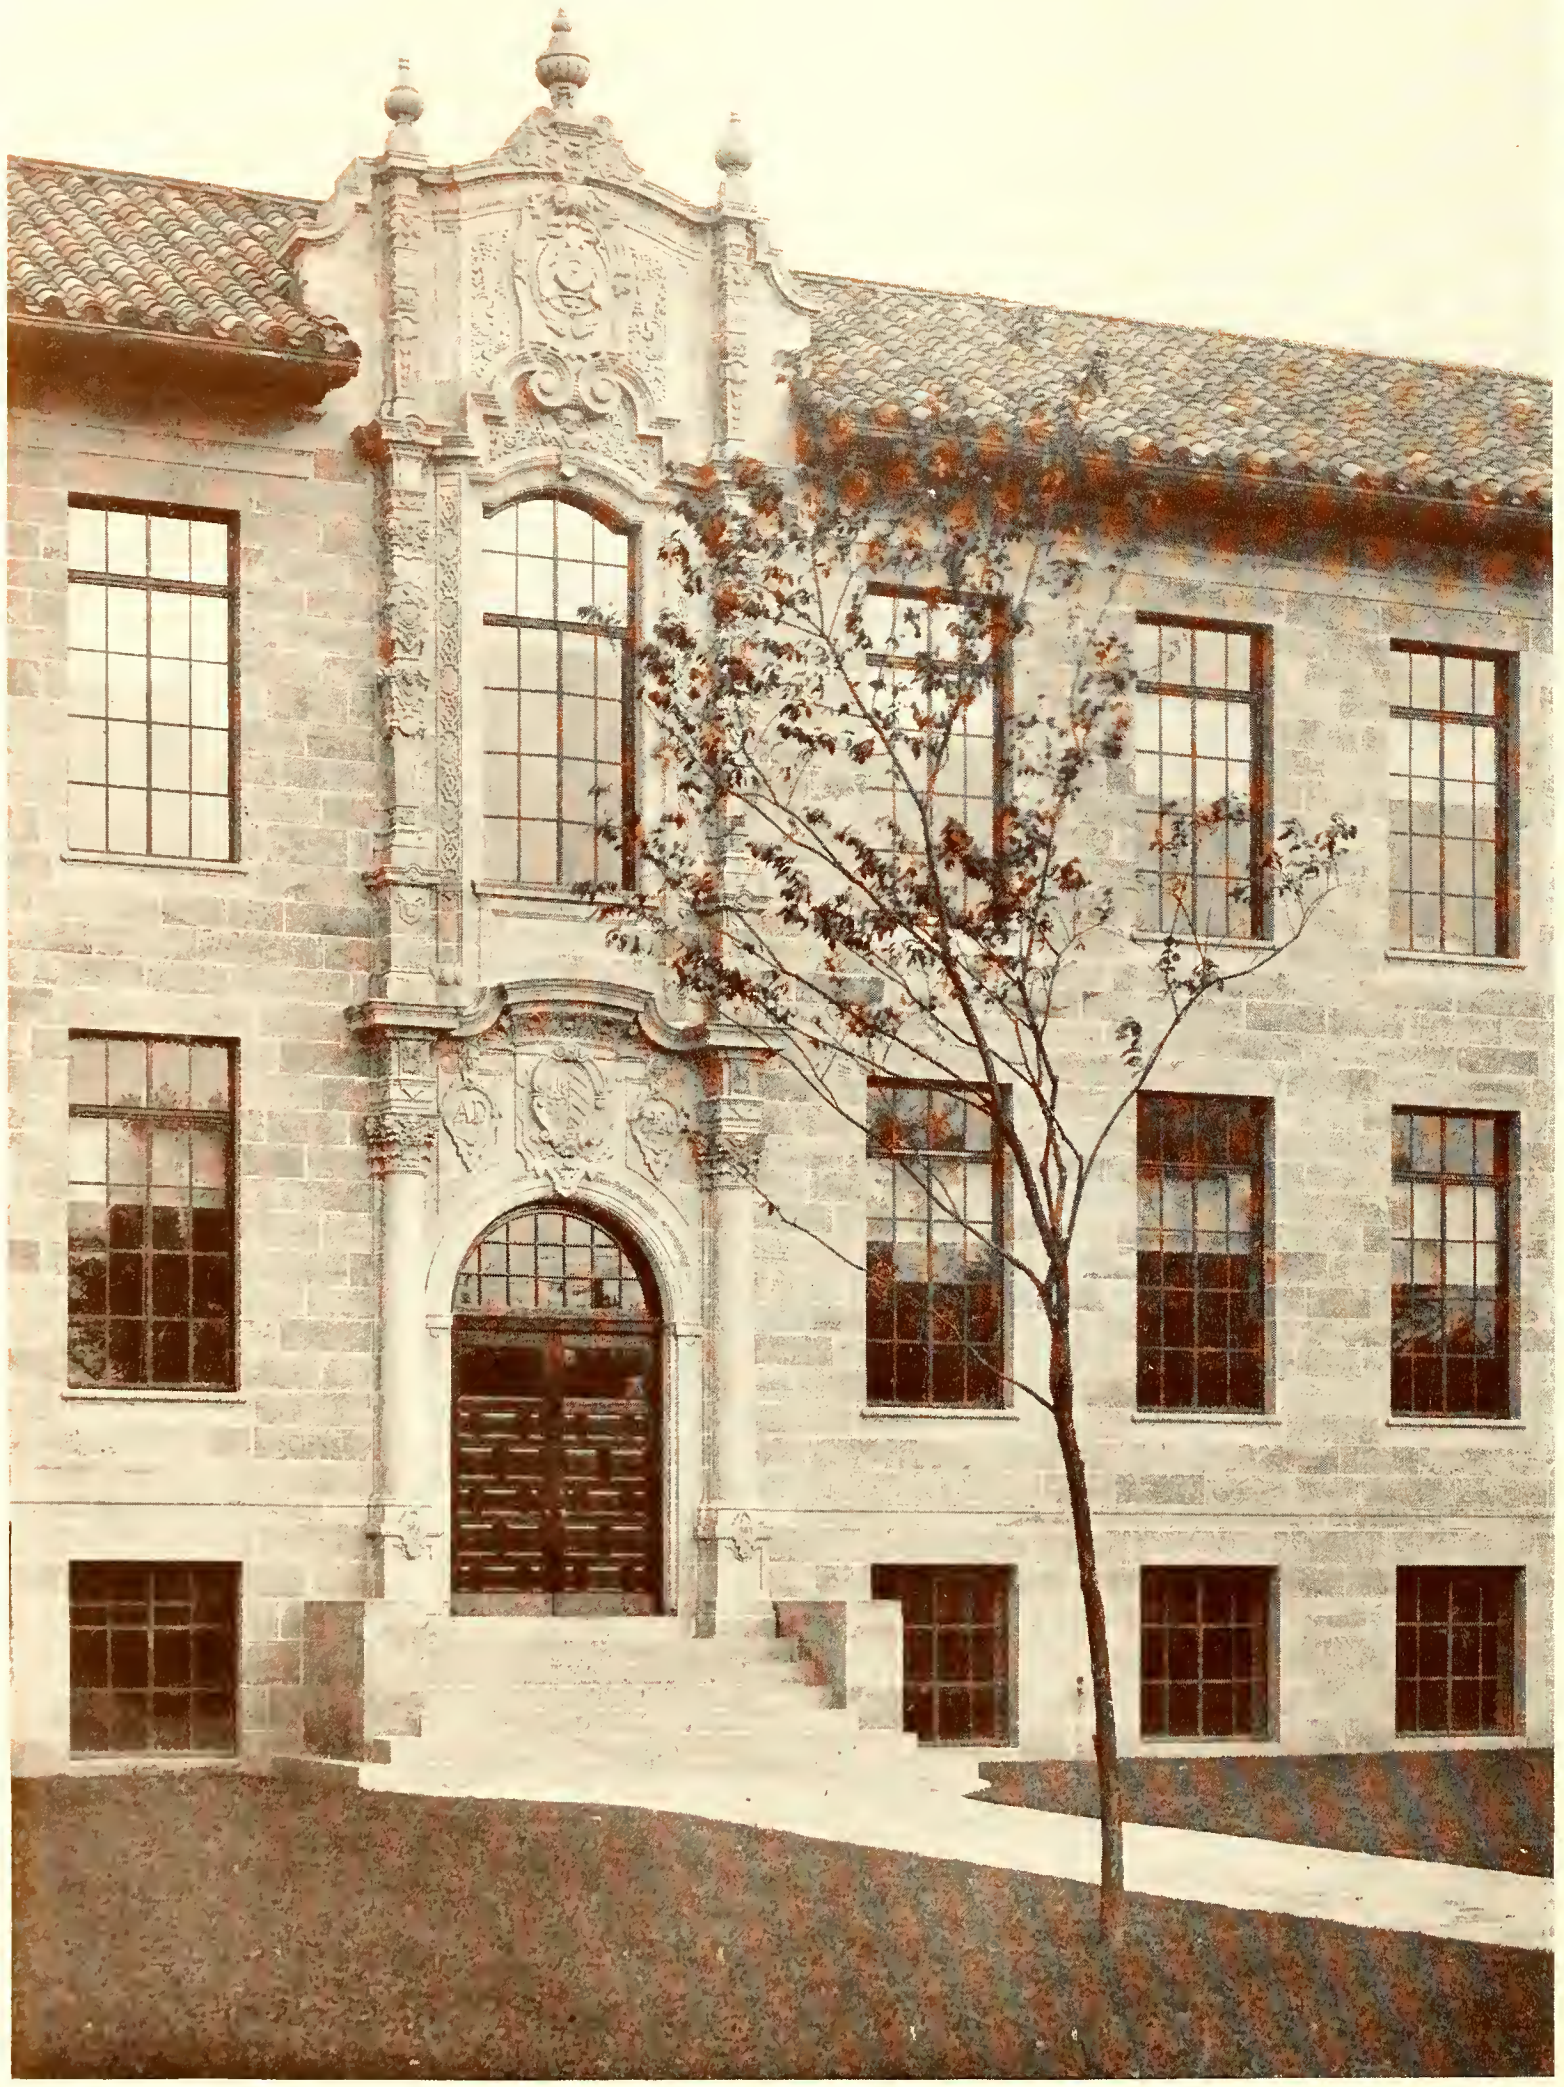
UNIVERSITY OF DETROIT



VERY REV. JOHN P. McNICHOLS, S.J.

CLASS OF 1931:

You go out from your college with certain ideals. Your school feels that the ideals which she has sought to develop in you will, if pursued, lead you to achievements of high and noble intent, but your school also knows that in the hurly-burly of modern endeavor it is hard to hold fast to lofty purposes. Your school asks you not merely ever and anon but frequently to look into this book and be stirred anew by the uplifting impulses which woke within when you studied and played beneath—the Tower.

ACTIVITIES

The growth of our university and the development of our city teach us an important lesson in the value of enterprise and in the value of united action. Extra-curricular activities foster a feeling of brotherhood, stimulate our loyalty, afford inspiration to the lethargic, and cultivate dignity of bearing in the individual. Character is developed in the clash of wills, ambition is fired by competition, intellect is broadened by association, and the individual, made whole by the invigorating contact with his fellow men, is formed more completely in the ideal of our university.

THE TOWER

In the publication's office last spring, editors of the 1930 TOWER coined an adjective to describe the manner in which fraternities, clubs and various activities were customarily written up in college yearbooks. The word coined was "hooyfluent," a slang word, I know, but infinitely expressive of the swelling superlatives bestowed on every campus organization indiscriminately. Progressive groups were treated in the same manner as the unprogressive who each year come out of hibernation just in time to present affidavits of their existence to astonished editors.

The student will be left to judge as to the sobriety and impartiality of the stories in the 1931 TOWER. Needless to say, the editors have expended much effort to keep irrelevant matter and sophomoric praise out of the yearbook. Cold facts, they believe, impress more than mere verbiage.

A second innovation in the '31 TOWER is the inclusion of pictures of the faculty members. We all like to have something by which to remember the men who have taught us, even if it be, as one scribe put it "for better or worse"; though as everyone knows the personal bond between the students and faculty is a pleasant and intimate one. Cordial thanks are extended herewith to the faculty body for its splendid co-operation with the editors.

Tribute also must be paid to the student photographers who contributed largely to the TOWER feature section and made possible by their efforts the exceptionally large section it is.

The task of putting out a yearbook is certainly not the task for any single individual. Rather, I like to think of it as a composite affair, planned and executed by a corps of capable and energetic fellows, whose diverse talents complement and make whole the talents of each other.

The stories throughout the book, excluding the stories in the sports department, are the work of Jack Young, managing editor, junior, Arts and Sciences; Jack Walsh, assistant managing editor, sophomore, Commerce and Finance, and of the associate editors: John Holland, junior, Arts and Sciences; Harold Cross, sophomore, Arts and Sciences; James Brown, sophomore, Commerce and Finance, and Clare Toppin, sophomore, Arts and Sciences. Each of these men has served an apprenticeship on the Varsity News and on the '30 Tower.

Co-eds of the University were represented on the upper staff by M. Lucille Sullivan, business manager, sophomore, Commerce and Finance, Miss Sullivan was the only co-ed on the entire staff. Carroll Nussey, business manager of the undergraduate weekly, though not a member of the staff, gave much kindly assistance.

The sports department is the work of Thomas "Taps" Polley, Varsity News columnist and associate editor of the 1930 Tower. His assistants were Tom Burke, Varsity News sports editor; Henry Wich, news editor, and Fred Lyons, junior, Night Commerce and Finance. Polley is a senior, Wich and Burke, sophomores, of the Day Commerce and Finance.

the taking of class groups, and the large job of identification. Frank Schaden, sophomore, Commerce and Finance, was in charge of distribution.

Reporters who assisted in the compilation of the book are George Crocker, junior, Arts and Sciences; Peter Wemhoff, freshman, Commerce and Finance; Al Masaitis, sophomore, Arts and Sciences; James Troester, senior, Arts and Sciences; David McHardy, senior, Arts and Sciences; William McIntyre, freshman, Arts and Sciences; Bernard Tykoski, sophomore, Arts and Sciences; Don Carney, senior, Arts and Sciences, and Michael Mohardt, junior, Arts and Sciences; Abner Hamburger, sophomore, Arts and Sciences.

VARSITY NEWS

A decade and a half ago, twenty-four students gathered in a musty office in one of the old college buildings on Jefferson Avenue. It was their intention to establish a newspaper for the University students. Previous to this time a monthly literary magazine, The Tamarack, had been the sole publication on the campus. These twenty-four students took up a collection to finance the project and then edited the first edition of the Varsity News.

It was their dream, as it is ours, that some day the Varsity News would blossom forth as a daily publication. Time and changes wrought within the University, have steadily advanced the newspaper from a small tabloid sheet to its present full newspaper size.

The promotion of student activities in both the editorial and news columns of the paper has been strictly adhered to by the staff. During the past year, the paper has emphasized its importance as the mouth-piece of the University. When the University of Michigan Alumnus incorrectly stated the position of the University of Detroit, in regards to the proposed charity football game, an authoritative and concise statement in the columns of the Varsity News, cleared the University of unjust insinuations and silenced her critics.

Through the efforts of the staff, West Virginia University was tendered the greatest ovation ever given any group of visitors. The prices of all class dances and the majority of the minor dances was cut considerably, after the Varsity News advocated, "dances for the students."

The largest issue ever published was handled this year. On April 15, an eight-page paper was placed in the hands of the students. Although it was not equaled at any other time during the year, it showed plainly what it was possible to do when the staff had time to handle the material.

Years ago, an editor of the Varsity News and his staff, sponsored the Bob-Lo Excursion. This became an annual event and the profits from these first few excursions were used to banquet the Varsity News staff. Then the affair was placed in other hands. This year it was proposed that the excursion be dropped since it had been a failure in the past two years. The Varsity News clearly showed that it was poor management and adverse weather conditions that had caused the failure. The excursion was re-organized and scheduled so that it could not help but meet with the approval of the students.

The make-up staff has been one of the improvements made during the year. There has been closer co-operation with the staff than heretofore. The Detroit News, Times, Free Press and Mirror have generously lent their facilities to the staff at different times.

Credit is due Delta Pi Kappa, the professional journalistic fraternity, which sponsored several symposia to which all the publications' staffs were invited.

THE CO-ORD

The establishment of our engineering magazine, The Co-Ord, in October of the present school year brought an entirely new institution in the field of campus publications. Its inception was brought about after several years of discussion and planning by Tech alumni as well as those students now in the Engineering school.

The purposes for which the magazine were instituted are many in number. One of the more prominent of these is to afford the student an opportunity in the field of technical writing; to give channel for engineering discussion; to stimulate good-will between the co-op student and his employer; and through wholehearted contributions from practicing engineers give the student an insight on the practical side of his profession.

With precedence established, the staff to follow should undoubtedly place before a critical eye twelve issues of a highly commendable magazine each year.

LAW REVIEW

The instrument by which the University lawyers get in touch with the outside world is the Law Review. This is a bi-monthly publication edited solely by the law students in the interest of acquainting themselves and numerous other readers with the newest quirks of law in the state. It contains accounts, briefs and decisions of all the recent cases of practical interest held in Michigan courts. Since its establishment in 1917 the Review has attracted much interest among the law undergraduates and even more among the alumni. Copies are sent to the libraries of all the large cities of United States, Canada and Europe, helping to increase the fame of the University of Detroit College of Law.

THE ALUMNUS

The Alumnus is the official publication of the Alumni Association of the University of Detroit. Published in magazine form, it appears on the first of each month and is sent out to the graduates and former students. Its chief duty is to keep them well informed on the activities and progress of their school and to bring to them news of their fellow classmates. Its purpose is to unite the alumni and alumnæ in one great body and to better their knowledge of and their loyalty to their Alma Mater.

The Alumnus had its beginning a little more than four years ago. During those years it labored under the handicap of an unsteady financial backing. Through no fault of theirs but solely because they lacked sufficient funds, the first directors of the magazine were forced to abandon a regular schedule of publication and had to be content with an issue whenever the opportunity offered. With the tools at their command, they performed excellent work, and like pioneers in every line they deserved unstinted praise for their efforts.

In September, 1930, the Alumnus was completely reorganized by officials of the university and a new staff was placed in charge. The resources of the University were put behind the Alumnus and the school's advertising department took over the advertising. With this new start a regular publication schedule was begun and now the first of each month brings a new issue of the Alumnus.

The chief task of the Alumnus is to carry to its readers news of the activity and progress of the University. In addition it must strive always to keep alive and to foster those friendships born in undergraduate days and to mould the alumni of the University into one great fraternal body that will be a credit and an aid to the University of Detroit. All activities of the University and of the Alumni Association are covered in its pages. Its editors try always to make each issue a complete issue, containing every bit of worthwhile news and information, and to write each issue in such a manner that the alumnus, whether he be of the class of 1883 or of the class of 1931, will relive, as he reads it, his own undergraduate days and become at least in spirit an active participant in all activities of the University. Also each issue contains one or more articles of an educational nature written by members of the University faculty.

Wm. J. Maledon

CYRIL A. LINGEMAN

Director of Public Relations

THE BUREAU OF PUBLIC RELATIONS

The activities of the Department of Public Relations during the past year have been directed to the end of making the city of Detroit "University of Detroit minded" by demonstrating that the University of Detroit is "Detroit minded." For more than fifty years the University has been sending into the life of Detroit, professional and civic leaders, mentally and ethically trained and culturally ripe. During the past year the University began an era of far broader service to the city. Evidences of this new era have been multiplying on all sides. Thus last October more than 800 minor executives of Detroit industries were invited into the classrooms of the University for a free three year course in industrial engineering. Research in the chemical, physical and aerodynamic laboratories has solved many problems for Detroit industry and has been made available on a "cost only" basis.

Appreciating its privilege of training for citizenship the youth of a great city, and faithful to its democratic ideal of equal educational opportunity to all regardless of economic or social circumstance, the University has taken special measures during the past year to make its facilities available to the financially handicapped. Tuition has been held to a sum less than two-thirds of the actual cost of the education. This has been made possible, of course, through the unrequited services of the Jesuit members of the faculty and by the fact that no dividend is paid on a capital investment of more than $7,000,000.00. In addition to furnishing education below cost the University, through its Student Loan Plan, has carried more than $120,000.00 in student notes during the past year to make it possible for students to finance their education out of income derived from a part time job. The University's Placement Bureau has aided materially in providing such jobs.

As a further means of fulfilling its office as an urban university, committed to a policy of service to the entire metropolitan area of Detroit in the city's varied industrial, economic, civic and cultural projects, the University broadcast a series of radio programs over WJBK last year. More elaborate radio plans are in prospect for next year but they cannot be outlined here, nor can any other program for the future be properly presented in these pages, since THE TOWER is essentially retrospective in spirit. We have written enough, however, to indicate some of the things we shall continue to stress in our task of interpreting the University of Detroit to the city of Detroit and the world beyond.

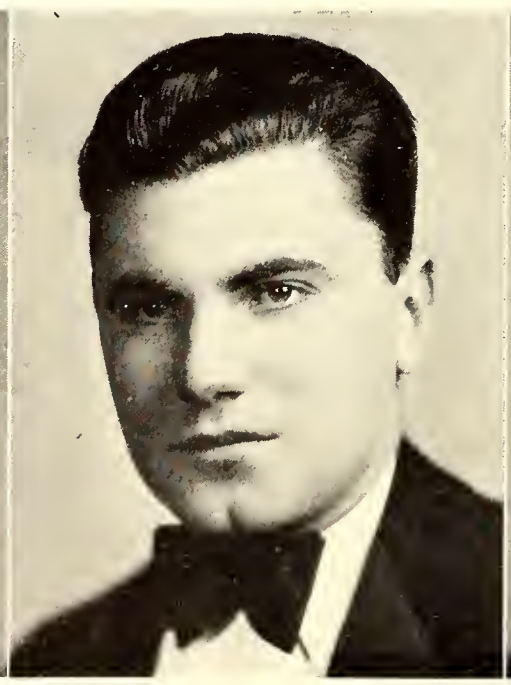
FORENSICS

Eleven victories, four defeats and two well argued no-decision debates is the record established by the 1931 Titan forensic team. Twelve debaters argued out four different questions in seventeen verbal battles to establish a record well representative of the University's debating talent.

Three sophomores, George Schwager, Wilfred Friday and Louis Bridenstine, opened the season against Ohio State College of Bowling Green but lost the judges' decision. The question was, "Resolved, that the several states should adopt a system of unemployment insurance." The following week Albert Nagler, Benjamin Newton and James Britt made an invasion of Ohio, on which they won four and lost one debate. Bowling Green, Xavier University, Dayton and Western Reserve fell in their wake while St. Johns scored an upset. In the same week John Treen and Ralph Johnston lost an audience decision to Loyola University of Chicago while John Young, Abner Hamburger and John Murray defeated another Xavier University team; the negative side of the unemployment question was upheld in each debate.

David Leahy, John Treen and Ralph Johnston composed the team that devastated the mid-west. They defeated the strong Northwestern University and Loyola teams on the unemployment question and St. Louis on the prohibition question. Purdue was engaged in a no-decision debate.

JOHNSTON



LEAHY

BRIDENSTINE

MURRAY

On March 15th, the University of Michigan was met at Marygrove College, in a second no-decision affair. Johnston, Treen and Bridenstine took the negative side of the "professionalism among college athletes" question and upheld it effectively. On March 17th, Johnston and Hamburger lost a close debate to Marquette while Murray, Young and Hamburger defeated St. Johns on March 26th.

On April 10th, Ralph Johnston and James Britt successfully defended Prohibition to win an audience decision over St. Louis University and in the final debate Hamburger, Johnston and Britt won a like decision from Northwestern University on the Chain Store question. The latter was held in the Florence Ryan auditorium.

The Philomathic Society has been the foundation of Titan debating teams. Each year the society sponsors a debating tournament, awarding the Gregory Cup to the winning team. This year about fifteen teams of two men each, representing a wealth of potential debating material, entered the elimination rounds.

Two contests held by the University also helped to polish up the debaters. Since 1894 the school has annually awarded a medal to the best orator. The Titan 1931 edition of Daniel Webster was John Treen. Ably presenting his subject, "A Challenge to Democracy" he emerged victor over James Britt in a bitterly contested fight.

The Skinner Debate climaxed forensic activities of the year. The debate was awarded the negative team. James J. Britt was chosen the best speaker.

BAND

Under the capable and energetic leadership of Phillip Wolff, the band was developed into an organization which now ranks with the best in the country. For the first time in the history of the university, semi-weekly practice sessions, interspersed with various public presentations, were continued throughout the year.

The excellent spirit which the band has manifested, was apparent at their initial appearance at the first football game. The organization, in an alert, confident manner, marched through their formations with a dash that prophesied their future achievements. Improvement was noticeable throughout the succeeding games which culminated in two brilliant performances staged at Milwaukee and Lansing respectively. The letter formations were perfectly executed, and their rendition of several popular marching songs was truly appreciated by the spectators.

Throughout those weeks the quality of the music also showed great improvement. At Lansing in particular, the sixty pieces blended into a harmony which has never before been approached by any previous organization. Under Mr. Wolff's able directorship, the musical quality of the organization reached a new acme of excellence. The stirring strains of "The March of the Titans" will long be remembered by the present students of the university.

At the close of the football season, the band launched an extensive entertainment program. Basketball games, smokers, hockey games, and similar affairs have enjoyed a greater success than ever before because of their whole-hearted co-operation. The most noteworthy of these performances was given at the Union smoker held early in March. Besides rendering several popular selections, they accompanied the guests in community singing. The band was also present at the Michigan State basketball game in the Holy Redeemer Gymnasium. It aided considerably in entertaining the spectators by playing several school songs during the halves.

In view of the efforts expended by the individual members of the organization, they were rewarded with letters mounted upon maroon sweaters. This is the first time that the bandsmen have received recognition for their services to the University.

Likewise Mr. Wolff feels a satisfying reward in the many clippings and letters which he received commenting favorably upon the splendid showing of his organization.

However, no band story can be considered complete without some mention of the student manager who has held his position for the last four years. Though his work does not bring him into the limelight it is by his careful planning that the band has risen into prominence. John Labadie, by his persevering and untiring efforts, has played an important part in the phenomenal growth of this organization; and next fall, unlike other years, it will be a well-organized, veteran band which will open the gridiron season.

DRAMATICS

Since its reorganization two years ago, the Dramatic Club of the University has achieved a remarkable record during its comparatively brief term of existence. Although the club encountered many difficulties and drawbacks since its inception, it has, nevertheless, become firmly entrenched and is filling a need which has been long recognized in dramatic circles at the University.

The primary purpose of the organization has been to promote and encourage an interest in dramatics by discovering and developing all the talent necessary in producing plays at various intervals during the scholastic year. Secondly, the club has for its purpose to bring together all those students who are sincerely interested in acquiring a fundamental knowledge of dramatics.

During the first semester the club spent most of its time listening to talks on dramatic technique which were given by the faculty moderator, Daniel M. Sunday and Prof. C. Baldwin Bacon. At the beginning of the second term a new policy was instituted: each member was to present a review of a play seen at a legitimate theater in Detroit, and to appear in a one-act play before the club.

Many of these one-act plays presented at club meetings were originals which had been written by Myrna Anderson, George McWilliam and George Crocker, members of the club. One, written by Miss Anderson, was broadcast over station WJBK during the weekly University of Detroit radio hour. The members of the cast were: Eleanor Reaume, John Bruce, Michael Abakanovitch.

The major event of the Dramatic Club's activities during the year was the presentation of Philip Barry's Broadway success "Holiday," a comedy-drama on modern manners and big business. So enthusiastically was the play received by the audience and the dramatic critics who witnessed the first performance at the Detroit Institute of Arts' auditorium on February 8th, that the club decided to present it again. Catholic Central High was the scene of the next two performances on St. Patrick's day, and later in May, it was staged at the Neighborhood Club in Grosse Pointe, and the St. James High School in Ferndale.

The members appearing in the cast were: Alice Frank, David Leahy, Marie Bunetta, Stanley Holwedel, David McHardy, James Troester, Virginia Canto, James Brown, Myrna Anderson, Mietka Sliwinski, Eleanor Reaume and John Trudell.

It is impossible to give credit to any one individual for the success of the many presentations of "Holiday." For behind the production we find not only a cast of players who willingly sacrificed their time to practice under the careful guidance of a competent faculty moderator until they had acquired a perfection equal to that of professionals, but also we find a group of capable committeemen planning and executing the innumerable details that insure success.

The production of "Holiday" indicates the significant proportion to which the Dramatic Club has grown since its comparatively recent reorganization. Likewise it indicates that another success has been recorded in the annals of dramatic activities at the University of Detroit. "Holiday" will stand as a lasting tribute to those who made its presentation possible and successful.

The Senior Ball, the final event on the social calendar of the class of '31, was presented on the evening of June 10th, at the Oakland Hills Country Club. As a conclusion to four years of close companionship and amicable relations the dinner-dance indeed came as a fitting climax.

The beautiful Colonial ballroom of the popular club was decorated in a scheme to harmonize with the season. Late spring flowers and other decorative features symbolic of the time were employed by the committee in their effort to further beautify the surroundings. A noted orchestra was procured to furnish the music for the occasion. Dancing was enjoyed between the courses of the dinner and was continued throughout the evening.

Souvenirs of the occasion were presented to the grads and to their guests. These gifts will be sure to recall happy memories of this, the outstanding feature of the Senior year.

The dance came during the activities of Senior week, and although the other events of that week were spectacular, still it is a fact that the Senior Ball of 1931 surpassed them all in brilliancy, in worth, and in gaiety.

On the evening of April 10th the junior class presented their annual J-Prom in the Commandery Drill Room of the Masonic Temple. The dance was by far the outstanding social presentation of the year, and the reception it received was proof of its success.

Two prominent orchestras, Del Delbridge's Book-Cadillac orchestra and McKinney's Cotton-Pickers, furnished the music for the more than seven hundred couples who were in attendance. The decorations were beautiful as well as mammoth. Drapes in red and white enshrouded the entire ballroom, and as to how these decorations were supported is a question that only the committeemen can answer. Beautiful favors were given to the ladies and to their escorts.

The feature of the evening was the grand march which was held at the stroke of midnight. Jack Teubert, general chairman, led the march with his guest, Miss Josephine Fricker. The other committeemen followed behind their chairman, and in the march were the guests of honor, among whom were Governor and Mrs. Brucker, Mayor Murphy, and Dr. and Mrs. Hermann Derry.

The committeemen of the 1931 J-Hop are to be sincerely congratulated on the success of their enterprise. Faced with difficult financial conditions at the very first they made a splendid success of their dance. One of the finest features of the work of this committee was the reduction in the price of the tickets from ten dollars to seven-fifty. In order to make payment for the tickets easier for the students, the committee instituted a new plan whereby the purchaser was able to make a partial reservation payment and then pay the remaining sum at his convenience. The plan received the hearty thanks of the students and they displayed their appreciation by making the 1931 edition of the J-Prom the greatest ever.

STEGER

"SUBSTI-TCOT" DANCE

"The Substi-toot," the first open fraternity dance of the season, was held on Friday, October 24th.

The Book-Cadillac Hotel, scene of the dance, was accordingly decorated in that spirit and proved pleasing to the sizable crowd who attended. The weather and arrangements for the evening proved ideal and nothing was left undone that would contribute to the enjoyment of the dancers. Mike Falk and his Collegians, always popular through the variety of their program, put the spirit of the Titans into their music and made the dance an object of joyful regret. Special arrangements of last year's opera, "Hello Stranger," were offered as a feature.

The success of the affair was largely due to Barney Steger, who was general chairman. Steger was aided by Bill Nagel, James Harrington, Fred VanFleteren, and Elmer VanTiem. From the enthusiasm which this offering of the Theta Alpha Sigma fraternity was received, next year's venture may be considered with assurance.

HALLOWE'EN DANCE

One of the brightest affairs of the season is the annual Hallowe'en dance sponsored by the Women's League. The past year it was held in the Colonial Room of the Masonic Temple with Mike Falk and his Collegians rendering the music for the evening.

The dancers that evening were stepping and gliding in a real hallowe'en environment. The hall was decorated with long, overhanging strands of orange and black drapings, with orange and black cats placed here and there. The programs, too, had the orange and black cats on the covers, and the color scheme harmonized with the season.

The chairman of the affair was Miss Frances Kline with Miss Marcel Frenette acting as her assistant. The reception committee was headed by Miss Mary Friedl; the patrons committee had Miss Estelle Fenlon in charge. The tickets and the decorations were in charge of Misses Monica Kondratovicz and Ethel Mattson. Miss M. Lucille Sullivan took charge of all the publicity.

TECH BALL

The Tech Ball, annual social event of the Engineering Society, gained another triumph for the engineering college, when it was held on January 16th in the ballroom of the General Motors Building. Patrick J. Carolin was chairman.

This dance has quickly gained popularity on the campus and so this year's record attendance was not entirely unexpected. This was due in a great measure to the foresight of the committeemen who reduced the admission price from that of the previous years, predicting correctly that this move would lead to a larger attendance.

The novel decoration of the room was both striking and attractive. Red and white clusters of lamps glowed dimly and multi-colored spotlights played on a huge spinning ball of small mirrors, suspended over the stage.

Mike Falk and his orchestra syncopated in their usually efficient manner varying their program by interspersing several skits which won instant favor from the guests.

A. E. C. DANCE

The annual Associated Evening Class Dance was held this year on January 29th, at the Maccabees Ballroom. This dance is sponsored by the entire night school of the C. and F. department. The chairman of the affair this year was Fred W. Lyons, a junior in the night school.

The ballroom was brilliantly decorated in the school colors. Drapes were placed across the hall, and over the stage was a large varsity banner. One of the unique points of the dance was the fact that programs were omitted and instead one had to remember just who the next dance was to be with. The music for the occasion was furnished by Ray Gorrell and his band. The playing of all the school songs was the feature of the evening and the merrymakers joined in the singing of the choruses.

The general chairman, Mr. Lyons, was ably assisted by John Dyer, Tom Benson, and Robert Lemon. The faculty moderator was Frank E. Edwards, assistant to the Regent.

PRE-MED BALL

The Third Annual Pre-Med Ball was held in the main ballroom of the Fort Wayne Hotel on Friday, April 17th. Bert Milan and his orchestra furnished the music for about five hundred guests of the Omega Beta Pi Fraternity, the sponsors of the dance.

The ballroom was beautifully decorated with balloons, fraternity banners, colored lights, and emblems representing the fraternity. A clever impersonation of Dr. Walter Damrosch was given by Mr. William Carlson.

The attractive programs consisted of an eight page booklet in which were inscribed the names of the guests of honor, the dance committee and their guests, also all the members and their ladies. The monogram of the fraternity was beautifully engraved on the cover.

The dance committee was headed by Martin Kaiser, chairman, and included Harold Cross, Edward Roth, Ernest Belanger and Richard Kuhn.

SPRING FROLIC

The Spring Frolic, sponsored by the Women's League, was held in the University of Detroit Gymnasium on the old campus on Friday, April 24th.

Franz Kolar and his orchestra not only entertained the guests of the Women's League with his music but also with skits and songs, all of which helped to make the Spring Frolic one of the delightful social gatherings of the year.

The gymnasium was beautifully decorated with green and white banners and emblems.

Two chairmen were appointed for the frolic, Marcel Frenette represented the day school and Douglas Harrington represented the night school. Both of these chairmen as well as the committee are to be complimented for the splendid manner in which the affair was staged. They were assisted by Frances Kline in charge of the tickets; Marguerite McCarthy, music; M. Zink, decorations; and Dolly Bauser, publicity.

Professor Wilmes was faculty moderator for the party.

RICHARDS

COLONIAL PROM

Looked upon as one of the most enjoyable fraternity dances of the year, the Eighth Annual Colonial Prom was held this year on May 1st at the Hotel Statler. Discarding the wonted date of Shrove Tuesday for a later date on which to present their function seemed to make the affair even more popular than it was on previous years. Frank C. Richards was general chairman of the dance.

In a simply decorated ballroom there prevailed an air of camaraderie which was enhanced by the large number of alumni who enjoyed the entertainment. Ernie Zooper and his Arabian Knights provided an unusual touch to the musical arrangements featuring a singer who at times stopped the dance.

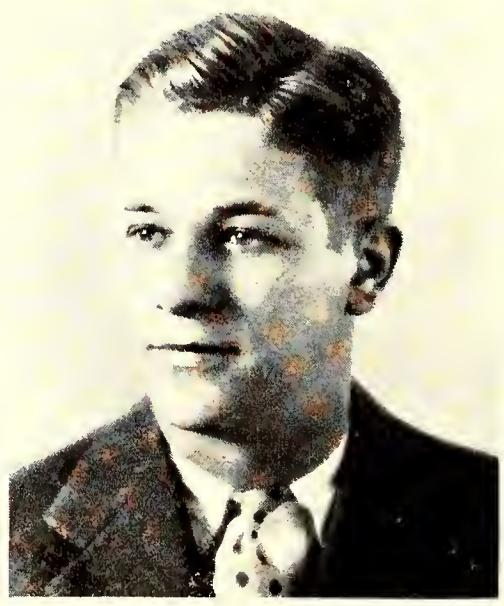
Always a scene of mutual fun-making, in this dance fraternal spirit becomes a feature of the evening in the awarding of the banner to the Greeks who have the largest percentage of their number present at the prom. This year the prize went to the Delta Pi Kappas.

ARGON TROPHY DANCE

In the beautiful and commodious ballroom of the Hotel Statler a large gathering of students and alumni attended the Argon Trophy Dance on May 15th. George Stewart headed the committee for arrangements and was assisted by Ted Donahue and Michael Bida.

The Trophy Dance is presented each year to honor the athlete who makes the most progress during the spring football practice. During the evening a large silver statuette of "Red Grange" is given to the fortunate gridder.

The scene of the dance was effectively decorated with streamers. It was not only an event of honor but one of unusual gaiety as is the custom at the Argon offering. Selection of an orchestra was carefully considered by the committee resulting in the choice of Ray Gorrell, who gave as fine a program of music then as he did at the Sophomore Snow Ball. Gorrell besides providing dance numbers amused with several chorus and solo selections.



STEWART

BOB-LO EXCURSION

Cares and duties of the campus were forgotten at the annual Bob-Lo excursion which was held this year on Saturday, June 6th. A final get-together before the summer vacation separates the friendships of the school year, the outing is always remembered with delight.

The athletic field at the park was the scene of spirited and often laughable competition with dashes, hurdles and relay races holding the center of attention. As the afternoon progressed many took themselves to the dance pavilion there to enjoy the music of Jean Goldkette's Orchestra; or a little further north one might see the turf-diggers taking their turn on the island links.

James Haggerty was chairman of the outing. He was assisted by James Brennan, Philip Stackpoole, Jack Teubert, Philip Conway, John Metras, Michael Bida, Carl Rothenberger, Arnold Mittig, Ralph Johnston, George Hess, Charles Laurencelle, Edward Kane, Homer Slonaker, Robert Lemon, Shelden McGraw, Thomas Benson, and Kenneth Tiffany.

Omega Beta Pi Cup

OMEGA BETA PI SCHOLARSHIP CUP

The Omega Beta Pi Scholarship Cup was established in 1929 as an annual award to the freshmen of the Pre-Medic department, with the purpose of promoting scholastic effort on the part of those preparing for the study of medicine.

During the first year of its establishment the award was warmly contested and only by a slight margin did the winner merit his distinction as victor. Last year's race was no less close when Joe Beer gained the fine scholastic average of 94.2 per cent, thereby winning the award.

KAPPA BETA PI AWARD

Kappa Beta Pi, a national legal sorority, this year established an award in the form of a key to be presented annually to that member of the sorority who has the highest scholastic average for her three years of work in preparation for the law profession. The purpose of the award is to promote greater effort and to reward scholastic achievement among the members. It is expected that the honor of winning it will be closely contested both this year and in future years. The presentation will be made by the Dean at the Commencement Exercises.

DELTA THETA PHI AWARD

Delta Theta Phi, legal fraternity, this year established at the Law School of the university an award to be presented annually at Commencement to that student who gains the highest average of his class during his entire law course. The purpose is to promote and reward scholastic achievement among those preparing for the legal profession.

It is expected that the establishing of this honor will stimulate even more intense competition than formerly, nor is there any doubt that the winner will have merited his distinction.

Chi Sigma Phi Key

CHI SIGMA PHI KEY

The Chi Sigma Phi Key was inaugurated in 1927. It is presented by Chi Sigma Phi, a fraternity in the College of Engineering, who have provided a fund for the annual award of a scholarship key to that Senior Engineer who has attained the highest scholastic average for his five years of work in the engineering department.

Arthur E. Bush, outstanding student in the Engineering College, had the honor of being the 1930 recipient of this tribute of scholastic supremacy with an average of 93.5 per cent.

SYMPOSIUM SOCIETY AWARD

The Symposium Society this year established an award in the form of a medal to be presented to that Senior, majoring in Philosophy, whose thesis is considered the best in the opinion of a board of judges composed of members of the faculty.

This innovation is sponsored by the 1930 alumni and will continue annually with the preceding graduating class making the award.

The award for this year was made at the society's annual dinner held at the Seward Hotel on May 25th, with Clarence Kummer in charge of the contest.

HOWARD WALSH MEMORIAL MEDAL

The Howard Walsh Memorial Medal was established at the University of Detroit in memory of the late Howard Walsh, a former student of the University. The award is presented annually to that student who writes the best essay submitted in the Intercollegiate Essay Contest.

The subject for this year was "Catholic Rural Life in the United States." The medal was won by John C. Cahalan, junior in the College of Arts and Sciences. The merit of his essay was sufficient to enable him to take ninth place in the Intercollegiate ratings.

CHI DELTA THETA ARCHITECTURAL KEY

Last year saw the inauguration of the first architectural exhibit at the University. The event was sponsored by Chi Delta Theta, architectural fraternity. Three prizes in the form of keys were awarded the best executed drawings on display.

George Brown won first place for his design of a bus shelter. William Johnson and Ralph Johannesen merited second and third place respectively with their exhibits. Plans are under way by the fraternity and the architectural society for a far more elaborate affair this year.

Continental Aircraft Awards for Student and School

ALPHA KAPPA PSI CUP

Alpha Kappa Psi, formerly Sigma Kappa Psi, national Commerce and Finance fraternity, established this award in 1929 for the purpose of stimulating scholastic interest among the fraternities at the University. It is therefore presented to that fraternity which has the highest scholastic average for the school year. The award is in the form of a loving cup of which any fraternity could well be proud to be the possessor.

After the results were carefully checked it was found that the winner for 1930 was Chi Sigma Phi, engineering fraternity, with an average of 86.13. Alpha Epsilon Pi gained second place with an average of 86.05.

CONTINENTAL AIRCRAFT ENGINE COMPANY AWARD

The Continental Aircraft Engine Company has this year presented two beautiful trophies and a scholarship to the University as the awards in a contest in aircraft design sponsored by the Aeronautical Department. The contest, which is to be repeated each year, is open to all junior aeronautical engineers. The winner will gain permanent possession of the smaller trophy as well as the scholarship which will defray the tuition expenses of his senior year. The larger trophy will remain on display at the University as a symbol of the contest.

MAGI MEDAL

The Magi, a fraternity in the Arts and Science College, award annually this scholarship medal as an incentive to intense scholastic effort. It is presented to that Arts and Sciences freshman who attains the highest average during his first year.

The award is much coveted and each year sees increasing competition for the honor of winning it. Last year was no exception and only by a slight margin was Louis Bridenstine successful in bettering his rivals. His average was 94.9 per cent.

FATHER OTTING MEMORIAL KEY

The Father Otting Memorial Key was established in 1929 in memory of the late Rev. Henry W. Otting, S.J., past regent of the University. It is presented by the Eta Zeta Sigma sorority to that senior co-ed who has attained the highest scholastic average during her four years at the University.

The winner of the 1930 award was Armella Friedl who achieved an average of 91.4 per cent. Eilleen Cross won second place with a slightly less average. Both girls graduated from the College of Commerce and Finance.

DELTA SIGMA PI SCHOLARSHIP KEY

The Delta Sigma Pi Scholarship Key was established at the University in 1921. This key is presented each year to that senior in each of the Commerce and Finance Colleges whose scholastic average is highest for the four years of work. Ever since the award was established it has been considered a great honor to succeed in winning it and therefore as the years pass the competition grows stronger.

George Sterbenz gained the 1930 award for the Day Commerce and Finance School with an average of 94.22 per cent and Erwin P. Simon for the night course averaging 89.9 per cent.

ALPHA SIGMA NU KEY

The Alpha Sigma Nu Scholarship Key is presented annually by this honorary fraternity and was established in 1929. It promotes scholastic attainment throughout the whole student body of the University.

It is presented to that male senior who has gained the highest average during his years of work at the University, and not until the commencement exercises is the winner made known.

George Sterbenz merited the award for 1930 with an average for his four years of 94.22 per cent.

SKINNER MEDAL

The Skinner Medal is presented each year to the finest speaker who participates in the annual debating classic, the Skinner Debate. It is sought for by members of the University's forensic organization throughout their four years of platform work, and the winning of the award marks the achievement of forensic supremacy.

The elimination tournament takes place before the Philomathic Society, six of the contestants being chosen to compete in the Skinner Debate. James J. Britt was named the 1931 winner.

The preliminaries are held before a regular meeting of the Philomathic Society and the best speakers are chosen to compete in the finals..

The finals were held at Gesu Hall on May 6th before an audience of students and friends, with six contestants competing for the honor. John C. Treen was named winner with James J. Britt taking second place.

GREGORY CUP

William B. Gregory, during his term as president of the Philomathic Society, presented that organization with a loving cup on which is to be engraved annually the names of the members of the winning team in the annual debate tournament.

The decision is rendered by the members of the Philomathic Society. Last year Albert J. Nagler and Louis Bridenstine defeated Douglas Turrell and Wayne Swonk in the final discussion. Nagler was voted the best speaker.

ARGON TROPHY

LOYALTY AWARD

SMEAD TROPHY

ARGON TROPHY

The Argons, general society fraternity, present this award each year for the greatest improvement shown in spring football practice by any player. It deserves special distinction because of its beauty, for it is one of the finest awards attainable in athletic activity at the University. The winner of this coveted trophy is decided by Head Coach Dorais.

William Warren merited the trophy for 1930 and James McNamara for the 1931 practice. The award is made at the annual Argon Trophy dance.

LOYALTY AWARD

There is always one player on any football team who ranks highest in inspiring his team-mates to greater effort, who is constantly cheerful even in the face of upsets, who is a consistent player, and who, through the power of his personality, proves himself of maximum worth.

To this player does the Athletic Association of the University present annually the Loyalty Award in the form of a watch. This year Arthur Massucci possessed all of these characteristics and was therefore presented with the award at the annual Delta Sigma Pi football banquet held at the close of the football season.

THE HAROLD SMEAD FOOTBALL TROPHY

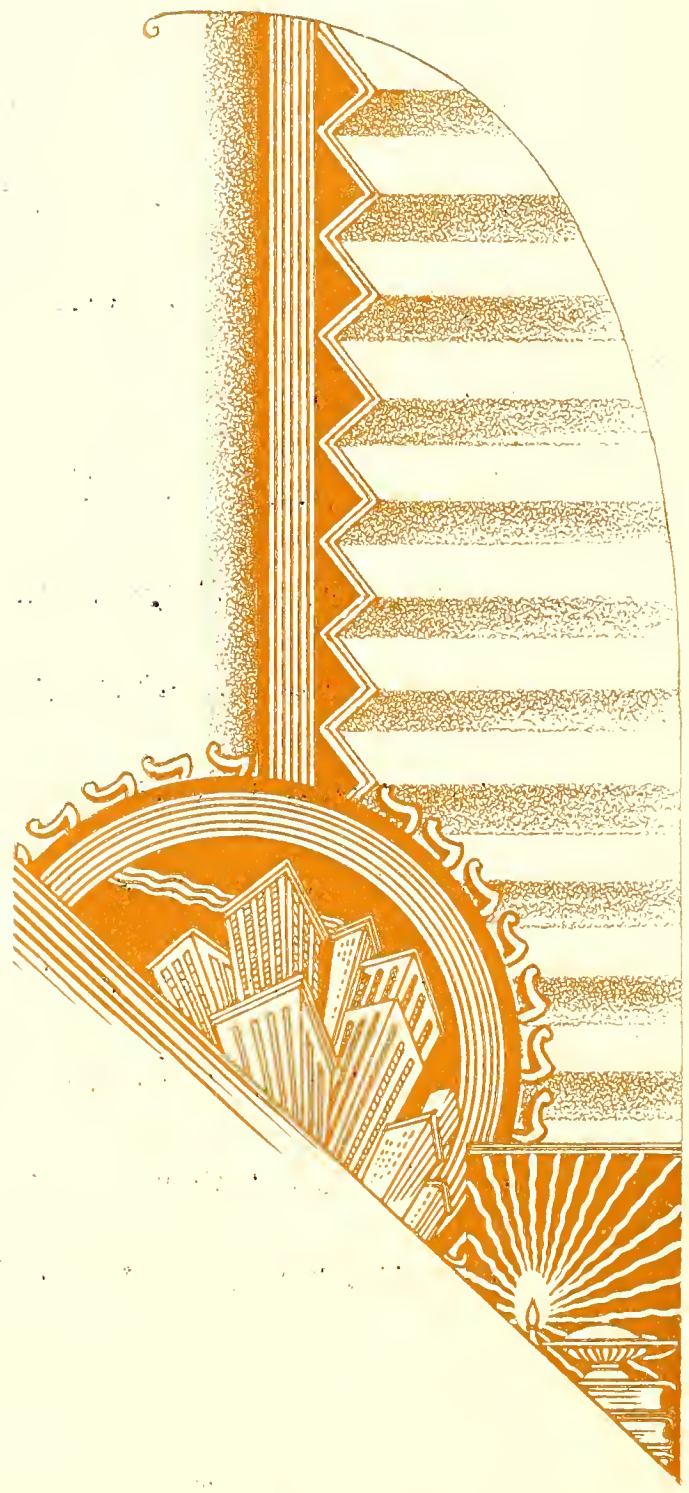
This trophy was presented in November of 1930 at the University of Detroit by the Xi Chapter of Alpha Epsilon Pi. It is dedicated to Harold Smead, injured captain of the 1930 Michigan State Football Team.

The trophy is to be awarded each year to the winner of the annual Michigan State College-University of Detroit football game. During the present year, each school is entitled to hold it for six months due to a tie in 1930.

UNIVERSITY OF DETROIT-WEST VIRGINIA TROPHY

The University of Detroit-West Virginia Trophy was established this year and owes the credit of its introduction to the section B engineers who not only conceived the idea but made it a reality by financing the project.

The trophy is symbolic of the friendly rivalry between these two institutions and will be given to the victors of each year's game, for a period of twelve months.



ATHLETICS

Just as nations compete for supremacy on water for the Harmsworth Speedboat Regatta Trophy so do educational institutions vie with one another for athletic laurels. Just as rival speedboats unleash their power and battle for victory in the trophy race so the athletes of our Alma Mater engage in vigorous combat with their opponents. Unity in action, co-ordination in thinking, indifference to personal injury, and patience in fatigue, are the fruits of athletic endeavor gathered by the Red and White lettermen of our university.

THE COACHING STAFF

To the coaching staff of every institution, those men of sports who labor so well, so patiently, that they might produce teams to uphold the athletic standards of their university, to these men goes a sincere and heartfelt vote of gratitude. To the Titan coaches who have produced the athletic successes of the past year, we of the University of Detroit owe such a vote of thanks.

The athletic destinies of the university are entrusted to Charles Dorais, athletic director and head football coach. Mr. Dorais came to the university six years ago when the athletic activities of the school were in a comparatively lax condition. To him fell the duty of building teams that would place the school on an enviable plane in the world of sports. Under his guiding ability the Titan football teams have progressed year by year. Each year saw an improvement in the caliber of these squads. The building of a football reputation is a difficult and arduous task and requires years of preliminary work, but Coach Dorais has done all this work and now the "fighting Titans" of Detroit are followed with interest from coast to coast by the lovers of the gridiron game. The financial worries entailed by the position of the athletic director have been his for years. But no matter how much is written of the prowess and accomplishments of this man, words will never tell the prodigious amount of work he has done in the development of sports at the school.

Assistant Coach Boeringer has been here for several years now and with each new season his worth and ability are better proven. "Bud" has charge of the linemen and it is due to his capable and efficient work that the lines of the Titan football squads are so widely recognized for their power and strength. "Bud" also was coach of the hockey team. Hockey is a comparatively new sport at the university and so it has met with the trials and discouragements of every embryo sport. However, hockey is becoming a popular sport and Boeringer has done much to insure its development.

Coach and trainer, "Dad" Butler is the third mainstay in our coaching staff. "Dad" is widely recognized in the world of sports, both for his ability as a trainer and for the development of track teams. To Butler is entrusted the care and training of all the athletic teams, and the production of the Titan track team.

Track is now recognized on the campus as a major sport and this is largely due to the constructive ability of this coach. This sport has progressed steadily for the past five years, and this season one of the finest track teams in the state is representing the university on the cinder paths. "Dad" has developed several star runners here. O'Neill is recognized as one of the finest sprinters in the Mid-West, and there are other speedy men under the tutelage of Butler.

"Doc" Brown and Lloyd Brazil have also aided in the construction of the Titan grid squads. Brown assists Boeringer with the linemen, while Brazil devotes his time to the backfield men. Brazil is also graduate manager of athletics and coach of the varsity basketball squad. During the past season he produced one of the finest quintets that has represented the university in several years.

To Fredericks and Ban Butler was entrusted the task of placing the Frosh athletic teams in competition. Fredericks had charge of the yearling football team, while "Ban" was coach of the first Frosh basketball team that has ever represented the school.

This was Fredericks' third year at the University, but his team of 1930 by far surpassed any that he had ever produced. Instilling in these plebes the fundamentals of the Dorais system of football, Fredericks developed a team that went through the season undefeated. Under his guidance many prospective varsity players were developed, who will be valuable additions to Dorais' squad next year.

Butler, handicapped at the start with the task of building up a new sport at the University, developed a quintet that has made basketball history for the Titans. Butler had some splendid material with which to begin his task, but it is certain that his able and steady coaching did much to produce the winning Frosh aggregation that was built this year. In his first year as coach "Ban" has registered a commendable record for himself and for the school.

Although fencing is a comparatively new addition to the sports program of the University, yet during the past year it has developed into a popular sport on the campus. This rapid progress is due to the splendid coaching of Coach Caswell and his assistant, Charles Schmitter. Under the tutelage of these two men, a splendid team was produced during the past year. Starting with a lack of experienced candidates Coach Caswell developed a team that represented the University in several meets and has captured several titles in state competition.

This, then, is but a brief review of those men who have so capably coached and trained the Titan athletic teams during the past year. It is impossible in so limited a space to detail their merits and accomplishments as they should be detailed. However, it is hoped that this brief resume will give an insight to the splendid work that is being carried on by these men.

STUDENT MANAGERS

Football, basketball, track, and all the stars in these respective sports are always given great praise for their work throughout the entire season. However, little attention seems to be given to those who act in the capacity of managers. Yet those who hold these positions are deserving of much credit for all the work that they do.

Dale Devlin was assistant football manager last year and this year he performed the duties of manager in this same sport. He was awarded his major letter at the close of the season. John Holland and Charles Pelletier were his assistants and helped him with his duties for the season.

Jim Brennan again took up the managerial reins of the basketball squad and was successful in this capacity for his second year. Francis Starrs, brother of Joseph Starrs, former track manager, followed in his brother's footsteps by acting as the manager this year.

John Holland, who was assistant manager of the football team, acted as manager of the hockey team and helped arrange games for the schedule. Donald Carney again took up the job of arranging for all the games that the golf team played and deserves much credit for the responsibility he carried.

Frederick Goodrich also was manager of the tennis team for a second year and upheld his duties successfully. Miss Margaret Myers acted as manager of the co-ed basketball team, being present at all the practice sessions and arranging the games on the schedule.

One of the newer sports which is quickly gaining recognition is fencing and much of the publicity that it has received is due to John Baumgardner, who proved himself capable of managing this new sport. His duties brought about many meets that the fencers participated in. Another new sport that was added to the increasing number at the University was the introduction of boxing. Although the boys got off to a rather late start there was much to be done by the manager and Ray Cogan performed these duties in remarkable fashion.

The managing of the Freshman teams brought out many for the positions and only those who proved themselves aggressive enough won the positions. Michael Thomas took up the work of being the Football manager, while William Brennan and Lew Echlin performed all the duties of managers of the basketball quintet and track team respectively.

Managers offer their services to the school and they too are awarded a much coveted letter at the end of the season.

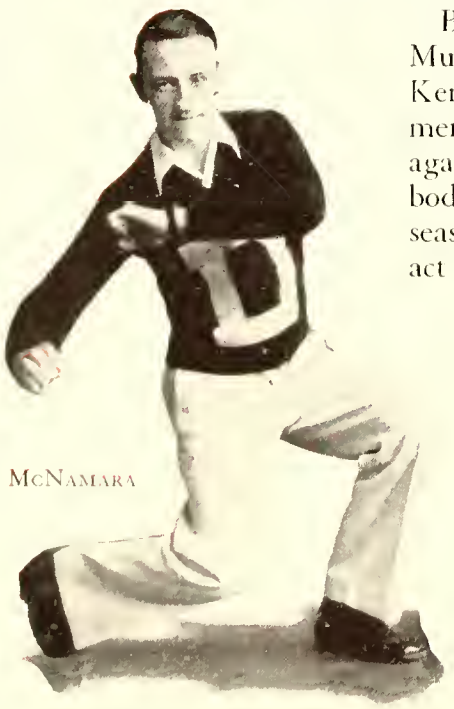
CHEER LEADERS

Under the leadership of Head Cheer Leader Joe Lubinski, the 1930-31 cheer squad continued its activities of former years despite the fact that its ranks had been depleted by graduation. The work of the squad did not end with the close of the grid card, but continued through the basketball season. They likewise participated in the Union smokers and at numerous pep rallies.

It would be a real task to select an individual luminary among the cheer leaders, so complete was their co-ordination and co-operation on every occasion where cheers were necessary. Whether on the gridiron, at pep rallies, or on the court, the zest with which they fulfilled their tasks carried into the crowds, and effected a cheering section where one had not been beforehand.



MCNAMARA

Besides Lubinski, this year's squad included Tom Muston and George McNamara, veterans, and Henry Kern, Julius McClain, and George Stewart, first year men. All with the exception of Lubinski, will be back again at the helm next fall, ready to direct the student body and the crowd at the opening of the football season. George McNamara was chosen recently to act as Head Cheer Leader for next year.

THE SEASON

The ancient and respected law of cause and effect was given a rude jolt by the Titan football squad of 1930. Displaying one of the best defenses in the country, mixed with an extremely powerful offense, the Red and White eleven should have ranked with the leaders of the nation at the close of the season. But holding opponents scoreless in six out of ten games, and allowing an average of but three and one-half points for the entire season, meant almost nothing when the final tabulation of victories and defeats was made.

The Detroit team scored 158 points in its first three games, an average of 52 per contest. For the entire season, 210 points were amassed by the Titans, an average of 21 per game. Yet for the season's record, the University of Detroit could show but five victories, three of which were scored over foes of practically no ranking at all. West Virginia and Georgetown succumbed to the powerful offensive of the Titans, these marking the only wins of importance in the entire season.

Against this record, the black marks of three defeats blur the pages. Iowa, Fordham and Loyola of New Orleans were able to measure out a doleful defeat against Detroit. Yet, here too, can be found a prideful fact: the average margin of victory for these three teams was only four points. Iowa skipped off with a four point victory, 7-3; Fordham had a six point margin when the game ended, 13-7; Loyola of New Orleans had a scant two point margin, given them by a misplay, when the season was ended with a 9-7 loss.

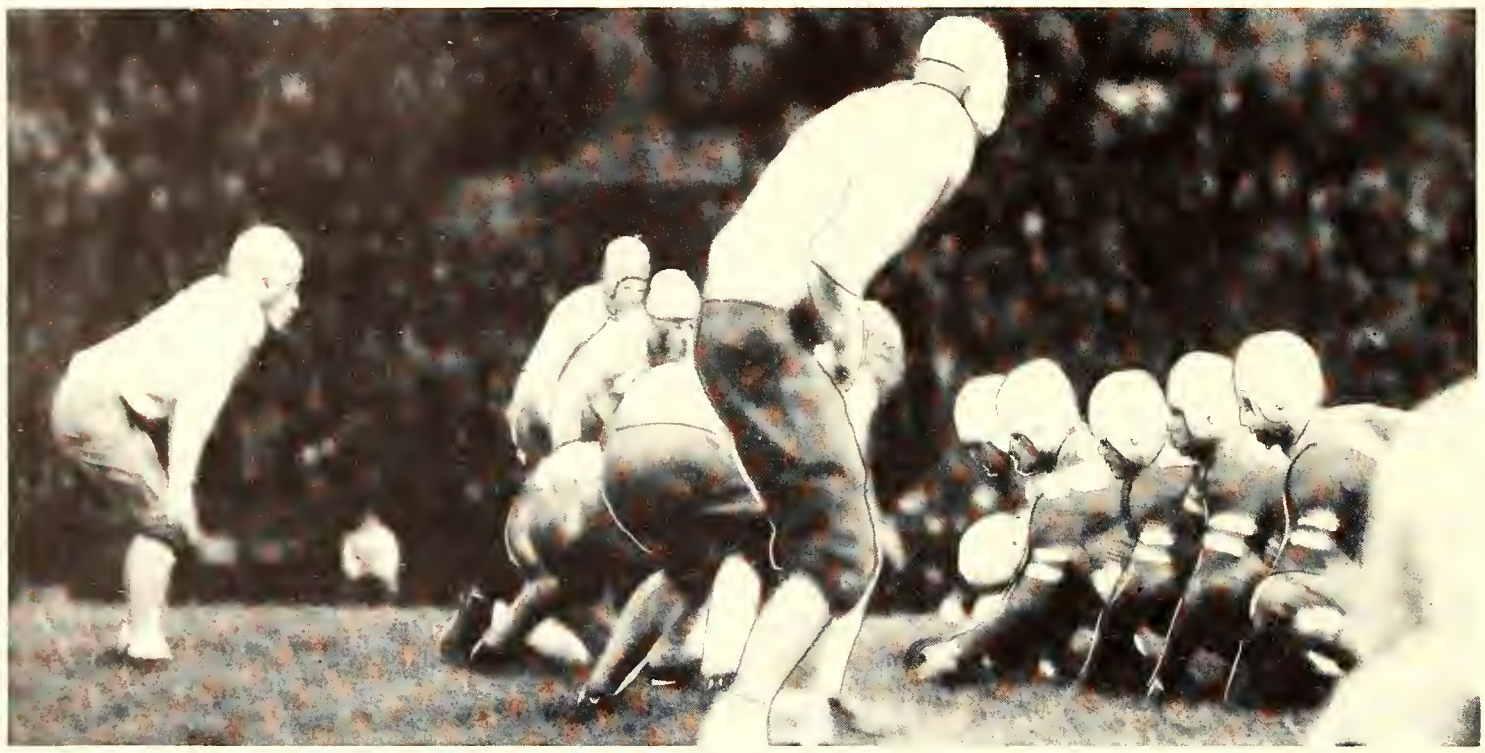
Completing the record of ten games, Marquette and Michigan State, two of the most bitter rivals of the Red and White, battled the Titans to a scoreless tie. Disappointing as these no-decision contests were, they served in a measure to make up for previous defeats. Iowa felt the power of the Golden Avalanche attack one week before the same outfit was held to a tie by the Titans; State had defeated Colgate and others of equal prominence before being tied by Detroit.

Based on the cold reckoning of victories, defeats and ties, the 1930 Titans did not possess any unusual ability. By merely glancing at the record books, one might get a false idea of the worth of this eleven which represented the University of Detroit. Facts are cold, hard and irreconcilable and do not always tell the entire story. The Titans did lose three games and could get only an even break in two others, but the .625 percentage is not indicative of all that went into the 1930 season.

Stories of men playing with bruised bodies and fatigued minds are not especially interesting to the outsider, but they do change the meaning of the affair. Men playing on sheer nerve look no different to the spectator than one playing with all physical advantages. But the difference is there nevertheless and it means much more than is generally thought.

The Titans of 1930 would not like to have a record of their individual achievements listed—the team was not made that way. Suffice it to say that it was a hard fighting outfit possessed with plenty of that spirit called, by professors, intestinal fortitude. Need anything more be said?

Taken collectively, the season yielded nothing of individual achievements, but it cannot be termed a failure no matter how severe the critic. Better teams have represented the University of Detroit in years past, but none more game nor more unfortunate. A team to be proud of, not from the judgment of win and lose, but from a general criticism of all things.



The Titans Gird for Another Powerful Thrust Through the Center

THE GAMES

The floodlights of Dinan Field will seldom, if ever, look down upon a more smoothly-functioning grid machine than that representing the Titans in their opening encounter against Adrian. Not since the palmy days when Kalamazoo felt the sting of a 73-0 defeat have the Detroiters scored so frequently. The final count was 59-0, and is indicative of the relative ability of the two elevens.

Detroit started like a whirlwind, the backs running with a dash and verve that bespoke mid-season form and the line blocking and plunging with deadly ability. Adrian was never in a position to threaten the Red and White goal line, whereas the Titans seemed to spend the greater portion of the evening within fifteen yards of the Adrian goal.

Substitutions were frequent during the contest, but Dorais seemed well-satisfied with the results obtained by his starting lineup, and retained the same eleven to open the Albion game a week later. Fifty candidates made their appearance in the game at one time or another, and not one failed to perform effectively. Because every position was open, and everyone had an opportunity to display his talent, spectacular playing that one expects towards the end of the year was very much in evidence.

After a rather slow start, the Titans ran away with a score of 51-0 on the Methodists. With three linemen on the sidelines because of minor injuries, the third nocturnal engagement looked more inviting than the first two. Up to this point, the Red and White had not met with any appreciable amount of difficulty in maintaining their unbeaten record. However, Grinnell, one week previous, had battled Marquette to a standstill, losing 6-0, in the final minutes of play. Facing an outfit like the Pioneers was sure to be a different story than those told in the openers.

The defeat of 47-6 administered to the Plainsmen was about the worst in the history of that school. Louie Berg's three touchdowns, O'Neill's one, and Parsaca's place-kicking formed the winning combination for the Detroiters.

With these three victories under their belts, the Titans prepared to stem the invasion of the highly-praised West Virginia Mountaineers. After holding the Red and White to a scant 3-0 score in the first thirty minutes, the Mountaineers collapsed and Detroit ran through them for three touchdowns and a total of 20 points. Bill O'Neill continued his scoring ways and added more prestige to the Irish by scoring all three touchdowns. The lanky Chicagoan skipped through the West Virginia defense from the three yard line to score the first touchdown and repeated the performance twice before the evening's entertainment was over. One feature of the game was the playing of Joseph and Sortet, the West Virginia ends. Never have a more effective pair of flankmen played on Dinan Field.

For the first time in many years, the Detroiters encountered a Big Ten team. This conference, reputedly one of the best in the land, has always produced consistent elevens, and few times have they met defeat. Here was Detroit's chance to gain added recognition in the world of football. Iowa provided an opportunity long awaited.

Detroit held a 3-0 lead at the half by virtue of Rocky Parsaca's gifted toe, but the slim margin was quickly dissipated in the final stanza. Warrington, Iowa ball-carrier, entered the contest late in the third quarter, and ran 53 yards in one sweep to score the first Iowa points. The successful goal after was just rubbing it in, and Detroit staggered off the field under the weight of a 7-3 defeat.

Fordham came one week later. Undefeated and untied, the Rams had come a long way on the road to national prominence, and a Detroit victory would have upset everything. For a time it looked like the Titans would snap the Fordham winning streak, when Reindeer O'Neill intercepted a pass and scampered 75 yards to a touchdown. The goal was made and Detroit led, 7-0, at the half.

Lack of substitutions, among other things, may have been responsible for the Detroit defeat. Even after Fordham scored their first touchdown, Detroit blocked the attempted goal kick and still held a one point lead. A hard-earned victory was lost in the waning moments of the game when Janis scored the second Fordham touchdown.

Captain "Bill" Storen Lends a Hand to a Faltering Weakened Line

The Titan linemen held the "most powerful line in the nation" on even terms. The All-American Siano was completely outplayed by Bill Fitzpatrick, Titan pivot man.

A record crowd of 20,000 fans watched the charity game between Marquette and Detroit at Marquette. An unusual coincidence came about as the result of the score, 0-0. One year back, Detroit was in the throes of a victory complex when they met Marquette, and the Gold and Blue held them to a scoreless tie. In 1930, the position was reversed, and Marquette was the undefeated and untied.

Although completely outplaying Marquette, the Titans were forced to accept a scoreless tie as the final verdict. Johnny Metras came close to joining the select ranks of linemen who scored touchdowns, but missed the coveted goal by a matter of five yards. Dame Nature had a hand in the game towards the close of the final quarter, a filmy fog spreading over the field. It was almost impossible to distinguish the people in the opposite stands at this stage of the game, and an equally baffling condition was present on the field of play.

Parsaca displayed real generalship by working the ball down to Marquette's one yard line late in the game. After a series of successful line plays had brought the ball to this strategic position, the Titan signal-caller sent Lou Berg around end into the arms of the Marquette Mangler, Johnny Siske, who dropped the Titan halfback on the 3-yard line. After the unsuccessful thrust, Detroit elected to place kick, but the effort was blocked.

Coincidences are often few and far between and scoreless ties between two elevens playing the Notre Dame system are equally as rare, but when Michigan State and Detroit had finished the annual struggle one week later, the count was the same as the Marquette tiff, 0-0.

State had beaten Colgate, tied Michigan, and accomplished other deeds of fame during their season, but their best efforts and those of the Titans resulted in nothing. The best Titan playing was done on the defensive, the Red and White linemen repelling the thrusts of State's great backs, Grove, Monnett, Kowatch and Eliowitz time and again.

State had the power to work the oval down to the Titan goal line, but Detroit had the power to effectively halt any thrusts inside the five-yard line. When the irresistible force meets the immovable object, the result is a 0-0 tie.

The last stand of the Titans of 1930 on their home field was made against Georgetown. The Titans slopped around on equal terms with the Atlantic Coast boys for the first half.

The slush, snow, sleet and mush that oozed gently over the turf of Dinan Field evidently had no effect on the Titans during the second half. The Red and White proved to be good mud-runners and scored a 12-0 victory.

After finally snapping out of the losing slump, things looked prosperous for the Titans when they embarked for New Orleans to meet the scrappy Loyola outfit.

Loyola started off with a bang and cracked through for a touchdown and then added two points on a safety in the closing moments of the game. For a time, when Detroit scored its touchdown, and made the score 7-6, it looked as though the Iowa and Fordham defeats would be the only blots in the Detroit 1930 record, but Parsaca, in an attempt to unleash a forward pass stepped offside in the end zone and automatically presented the Wolf pack with two very useful points.

The charity game crowd that watched the tussle got plenty of excitement and Loyola finished its season with a victory, while the Titans of 1930 closed an erratic season with a defeat. The 1930 squad performed nobly and accepted defeat from more able opponents in stoical fashion. No excuses or alibis for the 1930 eleven. Look at their record, take it or leave it, it is always a team for the University to be proud of, always willing and ever fighting.

THE SEASON

Although the past season was an in and out affair, the 1930-31 varsity basketball squad posted evidence of becoming "the team with a wonderful future." The season record of ten victories against nine defeats is not of greatest concern, for the future was the dominant idea in the mind of Coach Lloyd Brazil, as he entered the collegiate coaching profession for the first time.

Summarizing the 1930-31 cage season would not be the most pleasant of tasks, if one were to consider merely the matter of wins and losses. But since the season serves as a criterion of the future, the resume assumes a cheery aspect.

The introduction during the past season of a Freshman squad, which engaged a number of opponents throughout the year, is one of the reasons why Coach Brazil believes future varsity fives will attain greater heights. Experienced players, indeed, will accomplish much in raising the standard of the indoor sport in the university.

Captain Cy Aaron and his cohorts, under the tutelage of "Braz," began their preliminary drills two weeks before the opening game of the season against St. John's of Toledo. Only four lettermen were at Brazil's disposal, in addition to a large, inexperienced squad of sophomore candidates. Inauguration of another system of play was necessary, and progress came slowly.

Building a new pivotal offensive attack and a man to man defense required time and constant drilling. The team was hardly in readiness when the season opened.

They did, however, take the opener with St. John's of Toledo, 21-16. Ragged basketball was evident throughout. The coach, experimenting with possible combinations, juggled his line-up often. Regardless of the indifferent play, the victory was an auspicious start.

UNGER

SOBIESKI

It took a last minute basket by Captain Aaron to win the Olivet fray, 13-12, but an improvement, although slight, was noticeable in the Titans' playing. Their passing and defensive tactics were especially improved.

Marquette University, coming to Detroit for the first of a home and home series, proved to be the strongest foe of the season for the Titans. The Golden Avalanche remained superior throughout the contest, and emerged victorious, 26-21. The ol' Detroit fight and shots from all angles of the floor were to no avail. Continuing his scoring spree, Captain Aaron again led both teams in total points garnered, with nine points.

Detroit's inability to stop Rachett, Adrian College forward, resulted in their 36-30 downfall at the hands of the downstate institution in the next game. Inconsistency shown in the Marquette fray was still evident. The Titans' plays were not clicking.

Uncorking a second half offense that bewildered the Ohio team, the Titans ran rough shod over Dayton University to the tune of 46-24. The comeback was a pleasant and inspiring one, the Brazil men looking every inch champions. Aitchison, sophomore forward, assumed the role of a luminary, by tallying twelve points from all angles of the floor to place his team in the fore in the second half.

Their general all-around play greatly improved. The Titan quintet continued the onslaught of the opposition in the Xavier University fracas, and won by a score of 26-20. The victory was the fourth of the season.

After the semester examinations the U. of D. cagers launched an extensive road trip which saw them drop three out of four encounters. DePaul University felled them, 21-17, in Chicago. Detroit's inability to cope with the height of their opponents who were playing on their home court caused them disaster.

On the following night Loyola of Chicago continued the winning spirit of the opposition, by upsetting the Titans in a close game, 25-21. Playing in foreign territory wreaked considerable hardship on Brazil's proteges, and their efforts were in vain.

Marquette scored their second straight triumph in handing Detroit its third consecutive defeat, 35-22, at Milwaukee the next evening. The game was close throughout, with Marquette rallying in the final minutes to trounce the Titans.

On their return to Michigan soil, Brazil's men evened matters with the Sprankle-coached cagers of Adrian College, by outlasting them, 26-20. In handing Adrian their second loss in six years on the canvas-covered court at the Adrian Armory, the U. of D. displayed the best defensive brand of ball shown thus far. But as yet the combination did not function to collegiate perfection.

"The Victory Song" resounded again for the Titans when they outclassed Assumption College by a score of 29-27, on the home floor. The game was a nip-and-tuck affair, and last minute baskets by White and Lau were necessary for victory.

Never was a Titan quintet ever forced to admit defeat as badly as they did against Michigan State. The Spartans, coached by Van Alstyne, had one loss marring their record when they locked horns with Detroit on the State Armory floor. State's superiority in almost every phase of the game is evident in the final tabulations, 34-16.

Wittenberg College possessed one of the strongest outfits in Ohio, but their undefeated record did not bother the Titans, for the latter played superb ball to hold their foes to a 30-21 victory. It marked the Titans' eighth loss of their campaign.

The U. of D. cagers remedied past performances by playing the most strategic game of the season against Loyola of Chicago in a return set-to at Holy Redeemer gym. Even then the Titans were forced to come from behind to eke out a 27-19 victory. Len Sachs and his Loyola quintet succumbed to the Titans' fast breaking, fast passing attack in the last half of the contest. Aitchison led the scoring with nine points.

Michigan State closed Detroit's home season by barely nosing the Titans, 16-11, in a contest featured by stalling tactics on the part of State. The Spartans led at the termination of the first half, 11-7, and "froze" the ball for most of the remaining time to outsmart the Titans. The latter were a much improved team over the one which lost to State earlier in the season.

On the Ohio trip the Titans scored double victories over Dayton and St. John's, Toledo. Dayton forced the Titans to the limit in permitting them to win, 24-22. Only a belated rally pulled the game from the fire for Detroit.

St. John's this time fell a victim of a greater score than previously, 22-10. The Titans were clicking and nothing short of a catastrophe could stop them.

The rejuvenated Xavier quintet, however, blotted out a perfect Ohio trip by beating the Titans, 22-17, at Cincinnati, in a hard-fought contest. Detroit, tired after the long sojourn, fought valiantly but could not cope with the fast attack presented by the Ohioans.

The season was terminated with a well-earned triumph over Assumption College at Sandwich, Ontario, in which points were counted with clock-wise precision. It was the occasion for the swan song of Captain Aaron and Les Butcher, who will be graduated this spring.

The 1930-31 season has passed into oblivion. The future faces the Titan mentor. But "Braz" is hopeful, hopeful for the best. His claims on such an outlook are weighty. He has Captain-elect Ed. Chapp, Lou White, Jack Cicotte, Fred Goodrich, Roger Lau, and Gordon Aitchison, veterans of the past season, on deck for next year. He has a large, experienced, and promising squad of this year's Freshman cagers at his disposal for next season. And greatest of all, perhaps, he has completed his initial season as a college mentor, and as a result has reaped experience and knowledge which will be indispensable in molding his future quintets.

TRACK

Although a comparatively new sport at the University, track has developed phenomenally under the direction of "Dad" Butler, Titan trainer and track coach of nationwide fame. For years track had been neglected and unappreciated by students and varsity followers while "Dad" looked to the day and worked for the time when he could place a strong team in first-class competition. For years his dream was unrealized. Then working with a few outstanding individuals, gathering around him a promising group of inexperienced track aspirants, he moulded into a strong aggregation an array of earnest athletes.

CAPTAIN YEAGER

WRIGHT

At the beginning of the 1931 indoor season Dad was confronted with the problem of developing a team out of a handful of letter winners. Yeager, Battat, Chapp, O'Neill, Carey, Kull and Greene formed the nucleus for his endeavors. A score of freshmen including Toppin, Wright, Burke, Willett, Riihimaa, Wich, Mohardt, Ryan, a few new faces, Young and Howell, and three Frosh field event men, Beer, Metras and Schultz, supplemented the previous year's squad.

Working out every afternoon on the Northwestern High track the Titan hopefuls were gradually rounded into shape, until by February 7th, "Dad" was in a position to enter a small number of men in the Michigan State A. A. U. meet held at the Central High Gymnasium. Slight hopes and student indifference before the meet were shattered after the meet when the Titans placed a close second to the strong Cadillac Athletic Club for team honors.

Stan Wright, in his first year of varsity competition captured first place in the 1000-yd. run, leading his team-mate and captain, Arch Yeager, to the tape by a scant three yards. In the 30-yd. dash Bill O'Neill, Titan halfback, bettered a six-year-old state record in breaking the tape yards ahead of his nearest rival. University of Detroit broke into the scoring column again in the 600-yd. run when John Labadie gained a second and Yeager placed third. Kull increased the Titan total by taking third place both in the 30-yd. high hurdles and in the standing broad jump. Hershey, Michigan Normal's star dash man, managed to tie Battat for fourth in the 300-yd. event. Completing the score was Joe Beer who heaved the shot for a fourth place. In placing second the varsity counted 23 points, surpassing the efforts of City College, Western State Normal, Y. M. C. A., Detroit Police Department, and a few others.

Encouraged by the showing of his proteges in the A. A. U. meet, "Dad" sent five men on a long trek to Morgantown, West Virginia, on February 14th. There the team managed to garner enough points to make their trip worth while. In the 70-yd. semi-finals, Bill O'Neill crashed through to tie the Field House record, but had to be content with a third in the final event, run a fifth of a second slower than the record. Climbing from seventh to third on the home stretch, Stan Wright gave a beautiful finishing exhibition in the 880-yd. run. Kull, competing against some of the best in the East, took a second in the broad jump and a fourth in the 70-yd. high hurdles.

After the West Virginia meet, "Dad" sent his men through two weeks of stiff training in preparation for the Michigan State Relay Carnival held at Michigan State College in East Lansing on February 28th.

The varsity two-mile relay was bettered by its jinx team, Michigan State Normal. However, the 880-yd. relay brought home a plaque by winning its match race. The winning team was composed of two varsity letter men, Carey and Battat and two new men, Mohardt and Wich, Frosh numeral winners of last year. Buck O'Neill upheld his sprint reputation by winning the 40-yd. dash. Mike Mohardt, a last minute entry in the 300-yd., captured second place, running second to John Lewis, City College's Olympic Team member in 1928.

Two Titan runners placed in the Central Intercollegiate Indoor Meet, held at Notre Dame University, South Bend, Indiana. O'Neill took a second in the 60-yd. dash losing one of the closest decisions on record, and Yeager took a third in the 880-yd. run. This carnival wound up the Titan's indoor season.

It was the most successful indoor season that this University has experienced and more important it developed from a few individuals and a large group of recruits, possibilities for an equally successful outdoor season. When "Dad" dispersed the Titans until the time for outdoor practice, he realized with evident satisfaction and noted with justifiable pride that before him lay the first real opportunity to make the University of Detroit as well renowned in the running game as it is in other forms of endeavor.

The outdoor season was slow in getting under way, due to the Easter holidays and a prolonged stay of "old man Winter's" dying efforts.

Practicing every day the track and field athletes slowly accustomed themselves to the feel of the spike, cinders, and starting block. Weeks of industrious effort culminated in a last minute entrance in a triangular meet with Michigan State Normal and Hillsdale on April 18th. "Dad" sent four men to the meet and all of them placed, Yeager winning the half and two mile runs, O'Neill, the hundred yards, while a third in the quarter mile and a fourth in the mile were scored by Riihimaa and Howell respectively.

On April 29th, the entire team was entered in a quadrangular meet with Michigan Normal, City College of Detroit, and Adrian College. The Titans emerged second. The varsity mile relay team composed of Wich, M. Mohardt, Battat and Riihimaa and running for the first time, was defeated by the national mile relay college champions, Michigan State Normal, in an interesting race featured by the strong running of the last two men on both relay teams. Other races on the schedule included: Michigan State College at E. Lansing on May 9th, Michigan State Intercollegiate meet at E. Lansing on May 16th, Central Intercollegiates at Milwaukee on May 23rd, and Albion College at Detroit on May 30th.

HOCKEY

Hockey as a varsity sport at the University of Detroit has had a rough and stormy career on its journey to stabilization, but interest in the skating sport has grown considerably in the past two years and each season marks a new record in games played and candidates playing.

The past season started slowly, due to the extremely mild weather that caused practice sessions to be held up. The pucksters finally did get in several tryout skirmishes before engaging the Royal Oak Merchants in the opening game of the season. The classy brand of play displayed by the Titans enabled them to hold the Merchants to a 3-3 tie, a creditable feat.

Following this rather auspicious start, the varsity took on the Night Law school sextet and trounced them 9-0. In this game the Varsity displayed their greatest playing of the year, their teamwork before the nets being near perfect, coupled with an airtight defense.

The first blot on the season's record was incurred at the hands of the Barton Plumbers, considered by many critics the strongest hockey outfit in the state. The Pipemen emerged victorious, 3-1, after sixty minutes of speedy hockey. By scoring against the Barton outfit and holding them to three goals, the varsity achieved something that several teams had been trying to do the entire season.

The second and last Titan victory was chalked up at the expense of the strong Pontiac Athletic Club. The Detroit outfit looked especially good in this, their lone achievement of the year. The upstate sextet boasted one of the best defensive clubs playing hockey and their defeat equaled that administered to Michigan State last year.

Three defeats followed closely after this contest, the season closing with a double defeat in the Detroit Municipal Hockey Tournament. Previous to the tourney, the Windsor Seniors ran rampant over the varsity by a 7-2 count. With their record standing at .500 per cent by virtue of 2 victories, 2 defeats and 1 tie, the U. of D. entered the tournament with high hopes of advancing at least to a prominent position.

The odds were too great for the collegians to overcome and they dropped their first round game with the Haley Athletic Club by a score of 8-1. In the second round they met up with the Royal Oak Merchants, the same outfit the Titans had tied, 3-3, at the beginning of the season. However, the Royal Oak outfit was in a far better form than the Titans and conquered them, 4-0, the defeat marking the first shutout scored against the Detroit pucksters in the entire season.

The 1931 varsity was handicapped somewhat by a lack of veterans players, La Breque, Sullivan and Erickson being the only ones to return from the 1930 sextet. Several promising younger players were developed, however, and the outlook for 1932 is most promising.

GOLF

Of all the sports that roll around each spring, golf carries the interest of the majority of students. This year's Titan golf squad was no exception to those of past seasons, and amassed a very commendable record during their schedule.

Building from the returning members of the 1929 squad, Manager Don Carney conducted a tournament that had an entry list of forty men. After several days of competition, which included a number of team matches and medal play, a team of twelve able golfers was finally chosen. These, numbering both upperclassmen and freshmen, formed a strong squad which took part in four competitive matches with the strongest clubs in the Detroit district. These matches aided in keying up the varsity golfers for their many intercollegiate matches, as well as giving the freshmen experience in competition.

A feature of the 1930 play was a special "stunt" arranged by Davie Milliar, Clinton Valley Golf Club professional, at whose course the varsity enjoyed season privileges. He and Carney arranged a "Moonlight Match" in which the varsity took on a picked team of University of Detroit coaches. The match, played with silver-colored balls which reflected the light, aided in showing the ability of the Titans to play under any conditions. Lack of moonlight, the cold weather and some dubious coaches made the match unique, if nothing else.

GOODRICH

TENNIS

Although laboring under a great handicap tennis is gradually becoming one of the University's leading minor sports, and the students are manifesting more interest each year as the call for candidates is isued. The candidates, up to the latter part of this season have had no courts to practice on, much less an expert coach directing their play. Nevertheless, past records and present power certainly indicate future greatness for the netmen.

A school-wide tournament opened the 1931 season. This proved invaluable in selecting material to fill in the vacancies left by some of last year's graduates. The finalists in this tournament together with the veterans include: Fred Goodrich, who acted as manager, Robert Leion, H. Ruysser, Frank Kelley and Frank Ruysser.

The schedule, with some of the matches still tentative, includes matches with Michigan State and Western State; a home and home series with Detroit City College, Detroit Tennis Club, Elancourt Tennis Club of Windsor. Single matches will be played at the Central Intercollegiate meet at Chicago, State Intercollegiate at East Lansing, and the National Intercollegiate at Havenford, Pennsylvania. Fred Goodrich and H. Ruysser will probably represent the school in the latter match. The Titan squad with five of last year's runner-up team back is expected to win the State Intercollegiate meet this year.

KUTLOV

FENCING

In the fall of 1928 Joe Kuenz, then a senior, introduced fencing into the field of University of Detroit sports. Under the skilled tutorship of a prominent alumnus and a swordsman of international note, William Caswell, the first Titan foil team succeeded in bringing home the state novice foil championship for the year.

Due to the graduation of nearly all veterans, the foil team of 1929 was composed of practically all callow duelists who were too inexperienced for intercollegiate competition. Out of this small group one outstanding foilman, Abe Kutlov, journeyed to the state fencing tournament accompanied by the sole veteran fencer, Charles Schmitter. Kutlov defeated the entire field to secure the state novice foil championship while Captain Schmitter won second in the epee and third in the sabre.

The climax of the 1931 season was reached in the annual state tournament held by the Amateur Fencer's League of America. Five men entered the novice events. They were: John Angel, John Baumgardner, Raymond Messer, Bernard Tykoski, Abe Kutlov.

The Titans emerged victors of the tournament. Captain Kutlov, by winning the state novice sabre championship and third in the epee was the high point winner of the tournament. John Baumgardner took second place in the foil and John Angel third in the same event, while Bernard Tykoski won the silver medal in the epee for second place.

CO-ED BASKETBALL

With a new coach and a new system of play, the co-ed basketball team fought through one of its hardest schedules this year. Its success cannot be measured in victories and losses, for the season was one of building and development rather than achievement.

Ban Butler began his duties as coach of the squad, only four members of which had had any previous experience. Twice a week the girls practiced and soon they were passing and running through plays, in a veteran manner.

The Gesu girls were the opening foes for the co-eds. This game, which everyone feared would be one-sided, turned out to be a lively one with both teams fighting to keep the lead. When the final whistle blew the co-eds were the losers by five points. This opening game defeat showed the girls where their faults were and they immediately set about to correct them.

The co-ed's showing in their next game against St. Ambrose Alumnae deserves much credit. The St. Ambrose team is well known for its perfect team work but the fast playing and tricky passing of the co-eds caused them many uncomfortable moments. In both return games played with these opponents the co-eds were again defeated.

In all the games Monica Kondratovicz, diminutive captain, was a real inspiration to the girls, with her fast, skillful playing and cheerful disposition.

FRESHMEN FOOTBALL

Under the tutelage of head-coach Fredericks and his assistants, "Bud" Zettel and Frank Kenny, the Frosh football squad of the past year was developed into the finest yearling aggregation that has been produced in several years. All the qualities of a varsity football unit were displayed by this team, and in scoring three decisive victories these men have merited themselves an enviable record.

With his first call for fall practice Fredericks was answered by 150 prospective candidates. Several days of intensive practice and a few weeks of "weeding out" narrowed the field down to fifty of the more promising prospects.

The first game on the Frosh schedule was played against the Michigan State plebes under the arc lights of Dinan field. Whether it was the brilliancy of the floodlights or whether the Red and White were so much the superior team is hard to say, but the boys from East Lansing were downed to the unharmonious tune of 32-0. The Frederickmen had things much their own way from the opening whistle till the final gun, and throughout the game their superiority was clearly shown. To Sosko and P. Rajkovich went the scoring honors of the game, but McCamely, a guard, placed himself in the scoring column by taking advantage of a sudden "break" and scoring a touchdown.

The second encounter was with the Frosh of Ypsilanti. The boys from up-state journeyed to Detroit with the reputation of being a rugged and powerful group, but this record was heartlessly shattered when the Titans ran roughshod over their opponents to the score of 37-0. The work of the forward wall of the yearling squad was by far the feature of the game. Scores by their opponents seemed imminent at several stages of the game, but when they were needed most the men of the line held their ground and repulsed the attack. It was in this game that "Giant" Guilianni and De Matia disclosed their power and strength as linemen. Sosko, McCracken, and Rajkovich gave another fine exhibition of steady and spectacular playing, and the entire team deserves credit for their commendable performance.

The last game of the season was played against Ferris Institute at Big Rapids. This game promised to be a duel between two powerful aggregations, but rainy weather destroyed a really fine game and limited the quarterbacks to straight football. The Frosh again turned in their usual brilliant performance and the Techmen were easily humbled. The Gibbons brothers added their names to the scoring roster during the game, each of them accounting for a touchdown. It was in this game also that Sullivan showed himself to be an outstanding fullback. Previous to this game Paul had not had many opportunities to display his real ability, but he made up for this lack of opportunities against the Ferris boys.

The real value and power of this Frosh team should not be based solely on their scoring-column record. These boys furnished the varsity men with real competitive material. Every week the yearlings had to learn the plays of teams whom their varsity "pals" would meet, and then they had to employ these plays in practice. Bumps, bruises, and knocks were the lot of these first-year men, but they may be assured that their plebe year was indeed a brilliant one and a continuance of their past performances will surely merit them places on the Varsity squad to make football history for the school in the future.

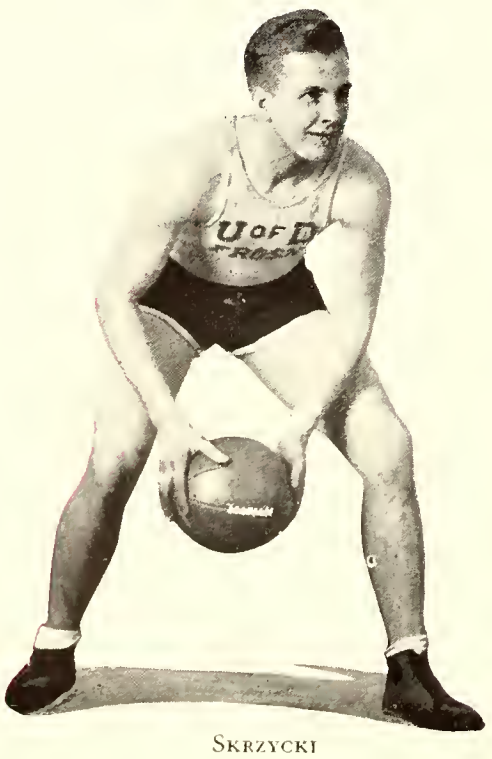
FRESHMEN BASKETBALL

Ten games in the win column and three in the loss column was the fine record set up by the first organized yearling cage squad in the history of the University of Detroit. Their success has undoubtedly assured the continuance of Frosh court aggregations in future years.

However, the object of the Freshman team is not to win games, but more stress is placed primarily on the instruction of the newcomers in the style of play used by the varsity aggregation. But the Frosh team this year has accomplished both purposes. Not only did they reach a certain perfection in the art of play used by the varsity but they also established an excellent record.



SKRZYCKI

TOOKER

In the first game of the season with the J. B. Simpson team the Frosh fought a hard battle to overcome them in the last period 18 to 16. Highland Park Junior College was a little too fast for the Frosh in the second encounter of the season and they dropped the game to them 27 to 22. However, the Frosh came back and took a closely contested battle from Bushway Post, American Legion, when Skrzycki, the husky pivot man, sunk a last minute shot to win the game 21 to 20. The next game was played at Holy Redeemer Gym on January 13, where the yearlings trounced the Monroe Sports, one of the better recreation league teams. The Frosh gained this third victory by cool, careful playing and although the shooting was slightly below par their splendid floor game offset this failing.

In the encounter with St. Thomas Y, Coach Ban Butler started his shock troops and at the half found that it would be necessary to send in the first team. It was well that he did, for even then it was hard for the boys to overcome the lead that was held by St. Thomas and it was not until the last few minutes of play that McCarthy, a forward, made two scintillating shots that earned a victory for the Frosh over St. Thomas in the preliminary to the Dayton-U. of D. Varsity tussle.

The U. of D. Frosh then met St. Rose Alumni in the next encounter and downed them 35 to 9. The collegians were entirely too big and too experienced for their rivals and the outcome was never in doubt. In the last stanza Ban Butler sent in his third string outfit and even though their team play was a little rusty they were good enough to hold their opponents in check.

Over the week end of February 6th the Frosh quintet added two more wins to their growing list when on Friday, February 6th, they beat the St. Augustine Kalamazoo outfit, and on the following evening the Assumption "Bees." Hughes gave a sparkling exhibition of play with Skrzycki pressing him for honors.

The Freshmen then traveled down to Saginaw to win handily from St. John's, 32 to 26. Hayes and McCarthy, playing a clever brand of ball throughout the fray, were the cause of the Frosh triumph. The Wolverine Sports were the next to be taken down to the tune of 31 to 24. The yearlings then met the Cadillac Athletic Club and won 16 to 6. The last two games of the season were less successful, as the Frosh dropped their game to Ferris Institute and a return game to Assumption, losing 16 to 28, and 26 to 32, respectively.

FRESHMAN TRACK

The 1931 Freshman track team upheld the prestige of the yearling class in turning out strong teams and formed a powerful aggregation. Due to lack of proper training facilities, it got off to a late start for the indoor season. However, as the season went on it acquired organization and power that stamped it as one of the best first year teams turned out. It reached its full strength in the outdoor season, a fact attested to by the overwhelming defeat it administered its opponent, Highland Park Junior College.

The first call for Freshman candidates did not gather in all potential stars. Basketball season was in full swing and men of exceptional track ability preferred to keep on playing basketball. However, a squad of 25 candidates were put through their paces daily by Coach M. H. "Dad" Butler and his assistant, Mr. Weaver. Practically all of this group had prep school experience which they used to good advantage.

In the Michigan A. A. U. track and field meet held at the Olympia Feb. 22, Serakos placed third in the 300-yard dash and Wooley made a fine showing in the high hurdles.

In the Michigan State Indoor Relay Carnival, a half-mile relay team consisting of W. Rajkovich, McCracken, Wooley and Marchssault was running a fast and winning race until one of the runners slipped and fell on the track. In the individual events for Freshmen the Titan yearlings lost out only in the semi-finals or finals.

Despite the fact that spring football took many of its star performers off the squad, the Freshman team had an easy time beating Highland Park Junior College in its first outdoor dual meet, winning 101 to 24.

The Frosh have performed commendably to date, and there is no doubt that they will handle the three remaining dual meets in the same style. A picked team also participated in the half-mile and mile relays, special events, at the Michigan State Intercollegiate meet.

In the persons of Turschoff, Tooker, Wooley, P. Rajkovich, O'Mara and Simi, the Titans are receiving field men of exceptional ability. These should greatly aid the varsity team and go far toward rounding it out to a well balanced team. Among the sprinters, Serakos, McCracken, W. Rajkovich, Marchssault, Herman, Sweeney and Cunningham stand out. Kruger and Trybus are the most promising of the middle-distance men while Kaiser stands alone in the longer distances.

HANDBALL

The first annual handball tournament of the University of Detroit was won by Mike Gibbons, Freshman football player and a boxer of recognized ability. Second place fell to George Brescoll, and Edward Hilke defeated his opponent to take third place. Handsome medals were awarded to the place winners.

The game was inaugurated this year by Coach Charles E. Dorais as part of his policy to have all members of the student body participate in some form of athletic activity on the campus. All students were invited to attend. When play began on March 9th, fifty-six contestants had been registered and paired. The matches of the first week reduced the number to thirty. At this time the announcement of a trophy award for the winner gave zest to the remaining games. After another week of varied defeat and victory, Gibbons, Brescoll, Hilke and Bill O'Neill found themselves the tournament finalists. The contest as a whole was featured by many upsets and new-found stars.

All the facilities of the field-house were placed at the disposal of the players and everything possible was done to insure the success of the tournament. An outside court had been prepared beside the Engineering Building but bad weather prevented its use. The indoor court of the field-house is perceptibly small but effort is being made toward improvement. Regular rules were followed in the tournament, the contestant losing two out of three games being eliminated from further play.

Many players prominent in the sport in high school and recreational centers were entered and the interest evoked in this first tournament augurs well for future contests.

Other than its particular significance, the handball tournament possessed a far subtler meaning. It served as the foundation for an intramural sports program that has been long delayed, through no fault of the athletic association.

The students aided themselves by showing the interest they did in this meet, thus proving to the authorities in charge of sports that student support will be forthcoming at any other events they may choose to sponsor.

"Sports for all" is a slogan worthy of any university and the word will become deed in a short while if interest is sustained. The four semi-finalists were typical Titan athletes, one of them a varsity player, another a freshman of no mean ability and the other two of the type that intramural sports were designed to please. They are students not interested nor with time enough to engage in varsity sports, consequently the tournament has shown, even in its inaugural appearance, that it has a definite and defined purpose to serve.

BOXING

Boxing is the youngest of the minor sports at the University of Detroit. Future scribes will date its history (and let's hope that this history will increase in glory as it is formulated) from February, 1931, when a group of "pugs" met to discuss plans for a boxing team. During the early part of spring close to thirty candidates trained daily in the Gesu Gym in an effort to attract the eye of their veteran coach, "Dad" Butler. Several of the candidates showed past experience and developed rapidly while a few of the novices also improved enough to loom as potential material for future teams. Owing to the very late start that the boxers got and to the lack of equipment none of the Titan's first boxing squad have as yet seen fire.

A. E. C. BASKETBALL

Featured by uniformly strong teams, well-played games, and fine sportsmanship, the Associated Evening Classes sponsored the most successful cage season in its history. The league, composed of four teams representing each of the classes in the night school, played a double round robin under a schedule drawn up by Al Greenberg. Each team met the other three two times during the season.

After a lapse of one year, during which the Junior team held the top ranking, a Freshman quintet landed in first place after a hectic season of close battles. After losing their first game, partly through stage fright and the injury of their high-scoring forward, Switzer, the Frosh lost their opening game, but staged a brilliant comeback that won the championship.

Switzer of the Frosh captured scoring honors with 40 baskets and 5 free throws for a total of 85 points, just five more than Captain Sullivan of the Junior team. Sullivan led the scoring until the final game, when Switzer broke loose and amassed 23 points in one contest, thus assuring him the lead. Another Freshman, Pope, landed in third place with 52 points.

Brilliant individual work, coupled with some remarkable teamwork brought the championship to the yearlings, but only after considerable handicaps were overcome. The season of 1931 was undoubtedly the best-played in the history of the A. E. C. basketball games. The Frosh quintet displayed the best all-around ability ever seen on the Night School courts and too much credit cannot be given them.

As a fitting climax to the season, a dinner, sponsored by the Freshman class was held to honor the winning quintet. Gold basketball fobs were given to the members of the yearling quintet to testify to their ability. Future night teams will have to go a long way to equal the records set by the night teams, and every success is seen for the league.

The A. E. C. Basketball League has become one of the biggest recreational agencies for the night school students during the winter months. Formed in 1927, the League has proven its usefulness in uniting the interests and purposes of the students. Competition among the teams this season was keen from the start, especially when the Freshmen showed promise, early in the year, of regaining their lost laurels.

The tournament was hotly contested throughout, no team having a secure hold upon the championship until the final game had been played. In the five contests sponsored by the League, the Frosh have won the title three times, the Seniors and Juniors each winning once. This year the Sophs made a strong bid to finally bring the victory to their class but failed in the final struggle against the superior play of the Freshmen.

A. E. C. BOWLING

Shortly after the school year opened the Associated Evening Classes opened the 1931 addition of the Bowling League under the able direction of Marvin Livergood. The schedule called for games to be played every Wednesday night at the Wilson Alleys. Although there were not as many candidates as of previous years, five teams of five men each were formed and a series of contests were staged during the season. The games were so closely contested that at the end of the season the freshman and junior teams were deadlocked for first place. In the play-off the frosh team composed of Alexander, Beaton, Curley, Heath and Rath defeated the juniors and took the championship. Captain Alexander was high scorer for the season, hitting the maples for a season average of 185.

The Frosh victory in the Bowling League gives them a grand slam in the Associated Evening Classes sports activities, having likewise won the championship of the Basketball League.

It is noteworthy that the Associated Evening Classes is proving to be a leader in the establishment of intra-mural sports at the University through its Bowling and Basketball Leagues. These have attracted a large number of students both as participants and spectators and have served as the principal outlets for sport activities of the night school students.

Bowling is fast gaining popularity throughout the country and especially in the State of Michigan. The season begins at the time of the year when summer sports are over and winter sports have not yet begun. No ability or previous experience is necessary for the student to participate in the league; which should make it all the more interesting for those who have never participated in sports and hesitate to do so because they lack experience.

The Associated Evening Class believes that the Bowling League is doing much to promote a high standard of competition among the students of the night school, and at the present time the evening classes are attempting to organize a Bowling League which will include every department in the University.

The holding of the A. B. C. tournament in Detroit in 1932 should be of interest to all University pin men. All of these factors afford salient arguments in favor of a Bowling League throughout the University.

A. E. C. HOCKEY

In its second year of competition, the Associated Evening Class hockey team continued the good work started in 1930. The night school men finished their season with a .500 per cent average, winning two, losing two, and tying the fifth game.

In their opening game, the A. E. C. sextet trimmed their old foes of the preceding year, the Davey Fuel Co., by a score of 3-1. The game was crudely played, neither team showing any remarkable brand of skating. The defensive work of the Detroit outfit was the only highlight of the contest, their offensive playing being too straggling to be effective. As it was, however, individual work scored heavily against the Fuel Co. team.

Following this victory, the night school annexed its second and last triumph of the season by nosing out the Windsor All-Star sextet by a 5-4 score. In direct contrast to the opening game, some very excellent hockey was displayed by both teams. Although the defensive work was not up to the standard of the previous game, due probably to the better playing of the opposing forwards, the Titan offensive was all that could be expected. Consistent, well-teamed drives down center ice accounted for four of the goals.

The third game, that with the Titan varsity was expected to be the crucial contest of the year, but sickness laid low several regulars of the night school outfit, and they were able to put only eight men in the game. Lack of substitutes, poor teamwork, and irregular playing cost the night school several goals. In addition, the varsity had hit its peak form of the year and skated rings around the A. E. C. boys to notch out a 9-1 victory.

The night school dropped down to an even .500 per cent for the season when they dropped a hotly-fought game to the Royal Oak Merchants, 3-1. This game was played as a part of the Detroit Municipal Hockey Tournament, and was a rough and tumble affair from the start. The Merchants out-bumped and out-skated the Titans and had little difficulty in annexing a victory.

However, in a return game with the same sextet the night men managed to score some revenge by holding the Royal Oak team to a 1-1 tie. This contest closed the season and enabled the night men to finish the year with an even break. In this contest the team approached the best form of the season. The Royal Oak team had already checked up a victory over the varsity and the tie game played by the A. E. C. served in a measure to smooth over the trouncing received from the varsity.

Taken as a whole, the season was a success. Next year's team will have a great obstacle to overcome in the loss of Captain Bill Schmidt, who arranged games and directed the team while on the ice. However, several men who have had some experience will be back and hockey, as an established sport at the Night School, will probably advance in 1932.

INTERFRATERNITY SPORTS

In accordance with the University's spirit of progressive growth, the closing of the first semester witnessed the establishment ot an interfraternity basketball schedule for the salient purpose of encouraging and promoting basketball as an intra-mural sport among the students of the various colleges on the campus. Relatively speaking, these pioneering efforts of the Interfraternity Council in promoting basketball as an intra-mural sport as well as encouraging intra-mural track and baseball activities, have contributed greatly towards removing the prevalent feeling that sports for the average student at the University are lacking.

In the scheduled basketball contest the Argon fraternity emerged as the intra-mural basketball champions of the campus. Twelve Greek letter organizations participated in the league, completing a regular schedule of games arranged by the Interfraternity Council's sport committee consisting of the following: Albert Nagler, chairman, Paul Lilly and George Stewart.

The fraternities entered were divided into two groups known as the Red and White divisions. The Red division consisted of the Magi, Theta Alpha Sigma, Beta Sigma Pi, Alpha Epsilon Pi, Delta Alpha Phi and Alpha Kappa Psi. Those in the White division were Argon, Delta Sigma Pi, Tuyere, Chi Sigma Phi, Delta Sigma and Gamma Epsilon Phi.

The championship basketball game played between Argon, the winner of the White division, and Theta Alpha Sigma, the winner of the Red division, was held at the Rosary gymnasium on Thursday evening, April 23rd. The Argons, having eight victories and two defeats, overwhelmed Theta Alpha Sigma who had suffered only one defeat in ten games, in a fast, bristling and well-fought game.

The Argons defeated Theta Alpha Sigma, primarily, because of their unusually strong reserves. If Theta Sigma Alpha had been content to play a more conservative game the outcome might have been the reverse. However, the Argons seized the lead at the outset and, except for a few minutes in the second quarter, they stayed out in front, finally winning by a score of 25 to 19.

The decision of the Interfraternity Council to conduct a track meet on May 2nd, was a rather novel feature in intra-mural circles at the University. However, it resulted in a surprising amount of interest and attraction among the fraternities possessing track athletes.

For days previous to the date of the meet, many athletes representing the various fraternities were to be seen limbering up in the stadium, in preparation for it. Forecasts as to the final outcome were numerous and, it must be said, loyal. Every organization exhorted its members to don those long discarded track-shoes, so that its chances for success would be enhanced.

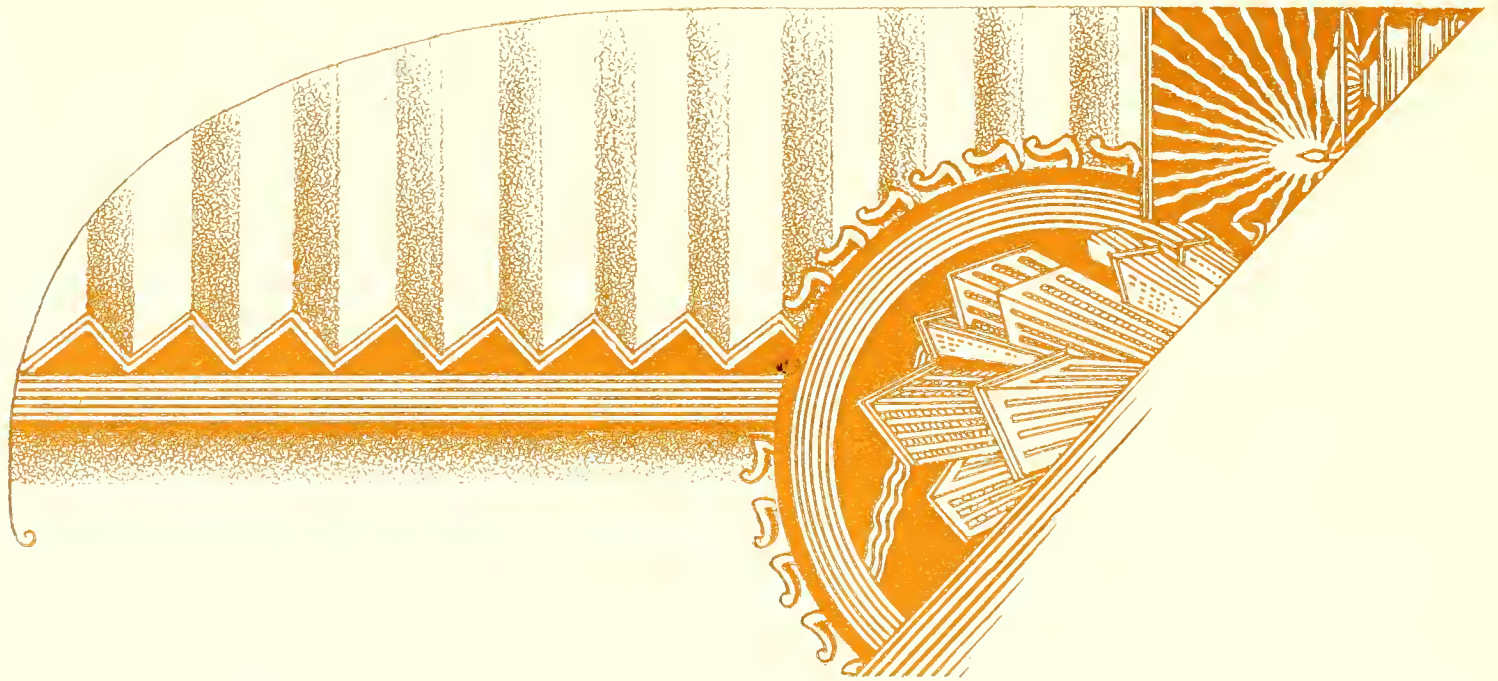
The events listed were: 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes; the 880-yard run, and the 880-yard four-man relay; the running broad jump, the 16-pound shot-put; javelin and discus throw, and the pole-vault.

This lengthy program required two days for its completion, an amazing number of entrants competing in each event. At the end of the first day, the Argons and Delta Pi Kappa were the main contenders for first place. The second day decided the issue, and the Argons were named victors of the first Intra-mural track meet to be contested at the University.

Another intra-mural sport which has aroused a great amount of interest among the fraternities is the interfraternity baseball league. The games involving the twelve contestants were started immediately after the Easter recess.

This innovation resulted in a great deal of friendly rivalry, for, during each of the games, the non-playing members gathered on the side-lines to inspire their respective teams to fight their hardest. It was apparent from the beginning that no fraternity was so superior that their path to conquest was fated to be easy. As a matter of fact the competition was so intense that the outcome resulted in a tie between Phi Alpha, Argons and Delta Pi Kappa, each of these winning all of its tilts but one.

The fraternities entered were: Alpha Epsilon Phi, Argon, Gamma Epsilon Phi, Chi Sigma Phi, Tuyere, Phi Alpha, Magi, Alpha Kappa Psi, Theta Alpha Sigma, Delta Pi Kappa and Delta Sigma Pi.



ORGANIZATIONS

To act in harmony with the group of which one is a member and thus to give tellingly of one's time and talent is a virtue acquired only by working humbly and diligently with one's associates. Our city hall, seat of multifarious activities, teaches us the value of co-operation in its execution of vast municipal projects. Dances, plays, scholastic contests, and other student affairs sponsored by our organizations instruct us also in the fundamental lesson of the acquiescence of the individual will to the common will.

ENGINEERING SOCIETY

The University of Detroit Engineering Society, one of the oldest engineering organizations on the campus, was founded in 1913. The purpose of this organization is to bring the students of the Engineering department into closer contact and to stimulate and foster a broader university and professional spirit.

The social activities of the Engineering Society include a banquet at the end of the year in which all societies of the engineering department take part. The club is also the sponsor of the annual Tech Ball. This dance is the presentation of the Pre-Junior class, but in order to assure the success of the function the Engineering Society gives financial and executive aid to the dance committee. Meetings are held regularly and speakers engaged to lecture on engineering subjects.

Those officers who guided the destinies of this, the largest society on the campus, were: Joseph Fisher, president; Ralph Boone, vice-president; William Murphy, secretary, and Clarence Falkner, treasurer.

ARCHITECTURAL SOCIETY

In 1928 the Architectural Society of the University of Detroit was founded for the purpose of promoting the aesthetic, scientific, and practical efficiency of the architectural profession and to encourage the development of the department of architecture. Membership is open to all students in architecture.

Toward the end of the scholastic year the Architectural Society sponsors an annual closed dance. This dance immediately follows the architectural exhibit which this society sponsors.

At the meetings held during the year, interesting talks were given by prominent architects, who covered new views on various subjects relating to this particular profession. Major L. Brent was the first of these speakers and he selected as his subject: "The Uses and Value of Common Brick." Other speakers were engaged and several of these also had displays to illustrate their lectures.

The officers of the society were: Ralph Boone, president; Morris Webster, vice-president; Sherwood Walters, secretary, and Carl Rothenberger, treasurer.

A. S. M. E.

The University of Detroit branch of the A. S. M. E. was founded in July of 1930 and received the one hundred and fifth charter of the society. The purpose of the society is to promote knowledge pertaining to subjects of aeronautical and mechanical engineering. It also purposes to give the students of the University an opportunity to participate in the activities of the national organization.

During the year meetings are held for which prominent mechanical engineers are obtained to give talks on various phases of this branch of engineering. Trips were also taken to different plants at which the members were enabled to gain first hand information concerning new mechanical developments.

The officers elected for the year were: Lawrence Brady, president; Harold Potts, vice-president; Paul Urschalitz, secretary; James McSweeney, treasurer, and Victor Checcolo, reporter. Professor F. J. Linsenmeyer acted in the capacity of honorary chairman.

S. A. E.

Founded in 1926, the University of Detroit Branch of the Society of Automotive Engineers has for its purpose the presentation to the engineering students the latest developments in the automotive and aeronautical fields. The national scope of the society brings this information to the door of the University.

The year's activities included a series of lectures by speakers of national recognition. Among them were: Mr. Woolsen, Chrysler Corporation of America; Mr. Alex Taub, Chevrolet Motor Company; Mr. William Stout, Stout Engineering Company; Mr. Kreusser, General Motors Corporation, and Mr. L. S. Larsen of the Auto Giro Company. Concluding the series, talks were given by Messrs. William Ferman, Cox and Stevens, and by Mr. Clayton Hill, of the Murray Body Corporation.

Professor Francis J. Linsenmeyer is honorary chairman, while Lawrence Brady holds the office of chairman proper. M. S. Simms is vice-chairman. Eugene Kelty and Stanley Skalski were elected secretary and treasurer, respectively.

AERONAUTICAL SOCIETY

The University of Detroit Aeronautical Society was founded in 1922. This organization was formed for the purpose of promoting interest in aeronautics, and to obtain prominent men as speakers at the society meetings, thus promoting aeronautical activities at the university.

At the meetings this year several men outstanding in aeronautics spoke. Among them were: Captain Collins, manager of the Ford Reliability Tour, and Harry Russel, winner of the 1930 Ford Tour. The meetings of this society are held in the Physics Lecture room, and all who are interested in aeronautics are eligible for membership. Those who are not students may obtain an honorary membership in the society.

The officers of the society during the 1930-31 season were: Paul Swan, president; John Malone, vice-president; James Woodhouse, secretary, and Curtis Bates, treasurer. This year the Aeronautical Society sponsored the Flying Club and the Glider Club, both of which gained much favorable comment at the 1931 Aircraft Show.

CIVIL ENGINEERING SOCIETY

In order to establish social and scholastic activities among the civil engineering students at the University, the Civil Engineering Society was founded in June of 1928. In view of the purpose of the organization, membership was restricted entirely to students enrolled in the civil engineering department, for it was deemed that this was the best manner in which to accomplish the purpose of the club.

At the meetings held regularly throughout the year the business activities of the club were transacted and prominent speakers were invited to deliver brief talks relating to their particular field of work. Mr. M. H. Sullivan was the first speaker to appear before the society and he delivered a talk on state highways. Other speakers for the year were: Major Bagley of the Great Lakes Survey and Mr. Eyeric of the Portland Cement Co.

Officers for the year were: Vincent McGuigan, president; Thomas Reilly, vice-president; Ricardo Arellano, secretary, and Maurice Bleshoy, treasurer.

FLYING CLUB

The University of Detroit Flying Club was organized on May 6th, 1930. The purpose of the club is to give the students of the aeronautical department an opportunity to study this branch of engineering outside of the classroom and to permit them to gain professional information in the art of flying. In order to be a member of the club the applicant must not only be a student at the University but he must also be able to pass the Department of Commerce physical examination.

Throughout the year weekly meetings are held and talks are delivered by men of the aeronautical world. The club also sponsors a ground school and flying course for the members and permits them to gain both a theoretical and practical knowledge of these two branches of aeronautics.

John Hutmacher was elected president for the past year. His fellow officers were: Birger Honningstead, vice-president; Jack Ponsetto, treasurer, and William Hatcher, secretary. Honningstead also acted as instructor of the ground school course.

A. I. E. E.

The American Institute of Electrical Engineers was founded on October 19, 1927. This organization has for its purpose the aiding and advancement of electrical engineering, the presentation of professional perspective to engineering work, and the bringing about of a closer relationship in the personnel of the engineering world.

The association held several meetings in the Engineering Building, at which lectures on the topics of illumination, radio transmission, and the principles of X-ray were delivered.

The officers for this year were: W. R. Moyers, chairman; G. F. Trudell, vice-chairman; L. F. Ross, secretary, and Louis Higgins, treasurer. Professor H. O. Warner is their counselor.

The enrollment of the University of Detroit branch of this society is limited to those taking the electrical course. The society has, through its activity, gained favor in the School of Engineering, and in the national association, since its inception three years ago.

C. AND M. SOCIETY

The Chemical and Metallurgical Society of the University of Detroit was founded in January of 1929, for the purpose of creating a closer relationship between the students of the school and the men of the chemical industries. Membership was opened to any student or faculty member who was interested in chemistry or metallurgy.

Meetings were held during the year and prominent chemical engineers were engaged to deliver talks before the members of the society. The first talk was given by Mr. Philip Patterson of the McAleer Polish Co. Mr. Patterson selected as his subject "Technical Treatment of Lacquers and Paints." Mr. Taylor of the Parke-Davis Co. gave an interesting talk on the subject of "Vitamins."

At the beginning of the scholastic year elections were held, at which time Thomas Castonguay was elected president, Nicholas Bekema was chosen vice-president, Joseph Slater was named secretary, and Frank McCallum was appointed treasurer.

GLIDER CLUB

In December of 1929 the Glider Club was founded at the University of Detroit for the purpose of providing an aeronautical training for the students of engineering, and permitting them to take part in local, state, and national gliding contests. Membership is reserved to student, faculty, and alumni.

Monthly meetings were held throughout the scholastic year, at which times the theory of gliding was discussed and the business of the club was transacted. Two members of the club gave exhibition flights at the All-American Aircraft Show recently held in Detroit. At the Air Races held in Cleveland last fall, the club won a seventy-five dollar first prize and also a glider trophy. Practice flights were given throughout the year and the members of the club were able to gain first hand information in the handling of a glider.

Frank Weiler, president; Clyde Wood, secretary, and James Woodhouse, treasurer, were the officers elected to direct the club during the past year.

SPANISH-AMERICAN CLUB

The Spanish-American Club is one of the new organizations on the campus, being organized in September of 1930. The club purposes to stimulate the social relations and scholastic activities of the Spanish-American students of the University and to bring about a better understanding between Latin and North American students.

In spite of its comparative infancy this club sponsored a vigorous social season. On December 16th a dinner was given at the New Puritan. On April 22nd a dance was held at the Masonic Temple, and on April 29th a literary-musical meeting was held in Gesu Parish hall. During the year Spanish speakers were invited to attend the meetings and these guests gave interesting talks on subjects of interest to Spanish students.

The first officers of the Spanish-American Club were elected at the first meeting held in September. Those elected to office were: Ricardo Arellano, president; Rafael Villapando, vice-president; Ignacio de Sostoa, secretary, and Rene Montaudon, treasurer.

THE FILIPINO CLUB

Organized in 1928 for the purpose of promoting fellowship as well as an intellectual understanding among its members and the general student body of the school, The Filipino Club takes its place as one of the most interesting groups on the campus, and plays an important part.

Modesto Visaya, the president of the club, is assisted by Tranquilo Macali, vice-president. The office of secretary is held by Juan Bunuan, while that of treasurer is entrusted to Julian de los Reyes. Visaya and Bunuan are of the Commerce and Finance School; Macali and Reyes of the Engineering Department.

The organization held meetings regularly during the year. The highlight of the social schedule was a dinner dance given November 15th at the residence of Professor Bert N. Blakeslee in honor of the new members. Among those present were: Dean Russell Lawrence, Professors Joseph Votrobeck, Miguel Suarez, O. W. Hedges, H. O. Warner, Father Scott, and Mr. and Mrs. Tapy.

BUFFALO CLUB

The Buffalo Club of the University of Detroit was founded in October of 1929. The charter members, twenty-five in number, immediately outlined an ambitious program to support University projects, and laid plans for the maintenance of a house near the campus and the broadening of the club's activities so as to intercommunicate with other Buffalo clubs in universities and colleges.

Being essentially a social organization, the club seeks to promote a social relationship among the Buffalo students at the University, as well as to further the interests of the University of Detroit in Buffalo and its vicinity by offering information and assistance to prospective students. In December, a smoker was held in Buffalo, and in the spring of 1931 the first annual dinner-dance was given in Detroit.

In the election this year, Clarence Falkner was chosen president, Howard Barton was elected vice-president, Albert Driscoll was named secretary, and Chester Schintzius was selected corresponding secretary. George W. Gambert was elected treasurer.

CLEVELAND CLUB

The Cleveland Club was organized in 1929 by a group of students from that city. Membership was at first limited to University of Detroit students from Cleveland, but later Marygrove students were admitted.

During the year several social functions were sponsored by the club, the activities being divided between Detroit and Cleveland. In November a dinner was given at the Book-Cadillac Hotel, and in January a sleigh-ride party was held. In Cleveland, the annual Christmas holiday dinner-dance was held on January 2nd, and later the Easter vacation dance in the home city climaxed the social year.

The club has supported all University movements and the members find strength and willingness in the unity of their work at the University.

The officers this year were: Thomas G. Thornton, president; Lawrence E. Biggs, vice-president; Thomas J. Burke, secretary, and Joseph P. Walker, treasurer.

SYMPOSIUM SOCIETY

The Symposium Society was organized in 1929, and for the past two seasons it has been very successful in obtaining through its meetings the opportunity for common discussion and organized research in matters of philosophy. By its programs it has stimulated the interest and the intelligent thinking of the entire University.

Membership in this society is limited to those juniors and seniors and graduates who are selected by the members. The speakers for this year were: David McHardy, Mr. Charles Shires, Mr. J. Craig LaDriere, President of the Society; Rev. Frederick Meyer, S.J., faculty moderator of the Society, and Rev. Mark Gross, S.J., who concluded the meeting of March 6th, with a talk on the spiritual merits of St. Thomas Aquinas.

The officers for the year 1930-31 were: J. Craig LaDriere, president; Terence McNamara, vice-president; E. Vernon McClear, secretary; Russel Hagen, treasurer, and Clarence Fleming, corresponding secretary.

THE CO-ED CLUB

The University of Detroit Co-ed Club is one of the newly organized clubs on the campus. It was organized in March of 1929 with the purpose of furthering friendship between the freshmen and sophomore co-eds. It has indeed fulfilled its purpose in so far that various social affairs have been held during the past year.

It is strictly a social organization with its membership limited to the freshman and the sophomore co-eds, as the name of the organization implies. On October 14th a dinner was held at the Sunbeam Inn. Following this on December 12th a bridge party was held at Miss Kersnick's home. The annual dinner-dance this year was held at the Northwood Inn, on May 7th, and was limited to thirty couple. Vira Kersnick acted as general chairman.

The officers of the club for the past year were: President, Miss M. Lucille Sullivan; vice-president, Rosemary P. Hoban; secretary, Marie Barbara Szumiak, and treasurer, Marcel Frances Frenette.

DINAN CLUB

On November 15th of this year, the Dinan Co-Ed Club of the Evening School of Commerce and Finance was formed. It is a social organization and has for its purpose the promotion of good fellowship among the co-eds of the Commerce and Finance School and the Foreign Trade Department.

Since it is such a newly organized group only two gatherings were held during the past year. However, these two affairs were both university activities. The first was a bridge party on November 7th, which was held in the downtown Union Rooms, while the second bridge party followed on February 6th, and was held at the same place.

The membership of this club is strictly limited to the members of the Women's League. Miss Douglas Cecilia Harrington, sophomore Commerce and Finance, was elected to the presidency of the club, while the vice-president, secretary and treasurer elected were: Marguerite Mary McCarthy, Edith O. Zimmerman, and Bernice Helen Braun.

A. E. C.

In order to unite the classes of the Night School and to promote the social activities of these students, the Associated Evening Classes was organized in the fall of 1926. Membership in this club is open to all those students enrolled in the Night School of the University of Detroit.

During the winter this organization sponsored basketball, bowling, and hockey leagues. Regular games were played in these leagues and the activities continued until the early spring. On January 29th the society gave a dance at the Maccabees Hall. Ray Gorrell furnished the music for the hundred and fifty couples that attended. This dance was by far the most successful undertaking of the club and the students of the Night School are to be congratulated on their success. Later in the spring a smoker was given in the downtown Union rooms, and this concluded the social calendar of the A. E. C.

Those elected to office in the club were: Joseph Erdos, Charles Flynn, Fred Lyons, and John Girardin.

MEMORIAL TOWER

Silent and aloof thou art
To all this turmoil round thy base.
Let mortals reverence and depart.
Thy task is one—to guard this place.

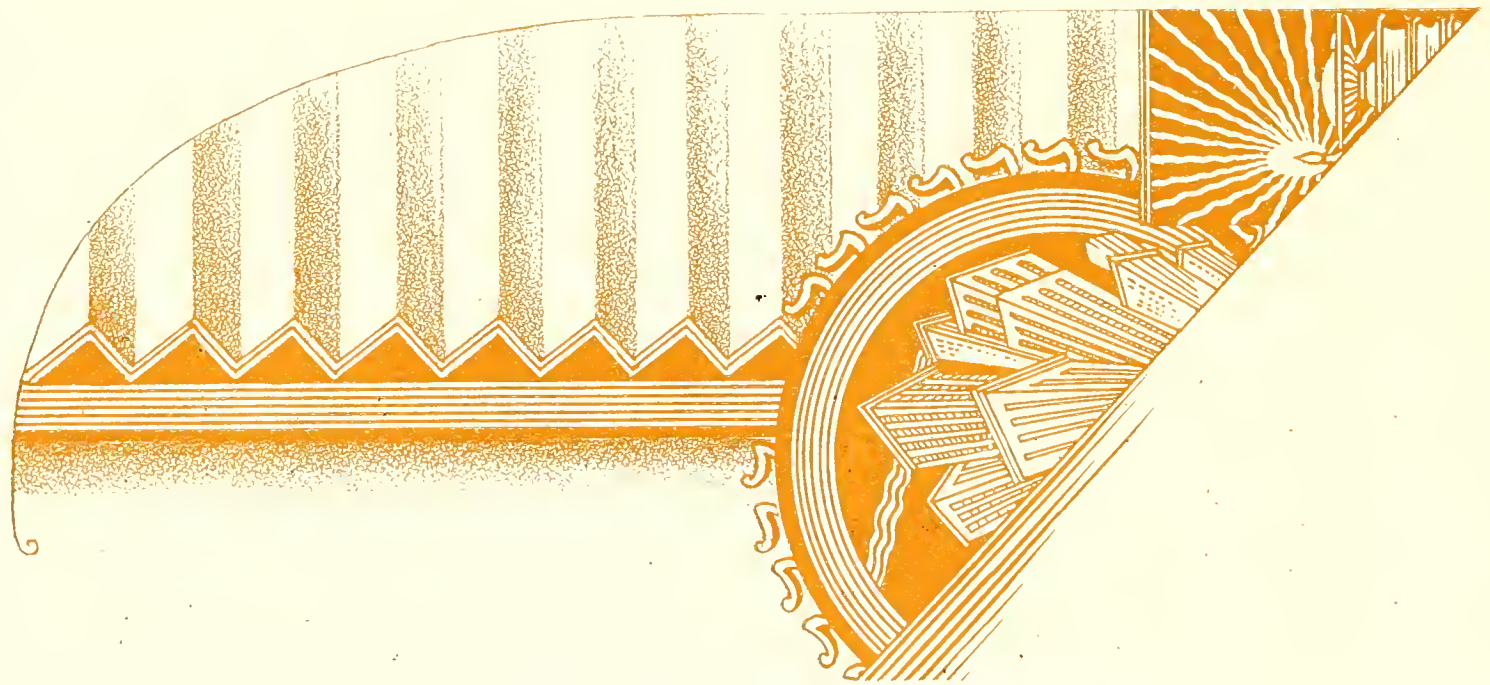
For in thy rugged bosom lies
A memory holy and sublime,
And thy stern vigilance defies
The desecrating hand of Time.

'Tis true their sacred dust lies not
Within thy shadow's round,
For stark white crosses mark each spot
On other hallowed ground.

Yet, when the night-wind murmurs low
About thy sheer, tall sides,
Unseen feet tread to and fro.
Their presence here abides.

For Alma Mater is their home—
The place that each loved best.
No more their weary spirits roam,
For here, at last, they rest.

JERRY DONOVAN, '30.



FEATURES

The Ambassador Bridge is a symbol of faith and trust and goodwill between two sovereign nations. And on the campuses of our university there exists also a similar feeling of friendship and bonhomie. In this album we have sought to perpetuate the hours of our companionship and present a record pictorially of those happy events that have transpired during the past year. Herein are recalled the hours of less serious pursuits. Humorous episodes, light moments, undignified poses, spots of beauty and interest, these and many other memories are preserved in the album of '31.

There's thrill in planning a beautiful home. In making it yours in design and materials. In choosing stone . . . rough or smooth finished, of random lengths and varied heights, with interesting hues to give it charm and distinction . . . the individuality of Briar Hill sandstone. A stone radiating warmth and cheer, whose soft golden tones mellow with age, suggesting sturdiness and lasting protection. This colorful wall facing is reasonably priced for the home you want to build. We'll estimate your blueprints without obligation.

You can have helpful ideas for planning your "dream home" by sending 10 cents in stamps for Booklet T31 today. It pictures many attractive stone houses and shows beautiful effects obtainable with Briar Hill's exterior wall facing.

Electrical Lungs
move tons of air

A circulation of several tons of fresh air per minute in many of today's buildings is necessary for the health and comfort of the occupants. It takes more than just another motor to serve this program year in and year out, without a shutdown.

Long-lived insulation is one of the features built into Westinghouse motors which makes them so dependable. Amber mica and Micarta protect the current carrying parts within the motor. At all times, these heat and moisture resisting materials fortify the power end of the ventilating and pumping systems. They enable Westinghouse motors to meet the requirements of sustained operation with negligible attendance and upkeep expense.

A call to our office will bring you complete engineering service for solving any of your building electrification problems.

Engravings Plus

In this day of mass production and standardization every engraving house can make engravings, just as every clothing house can sell you a suit of clothes that will cover your body. BUT—HOW?

It is because we make printing plates that fit the purpose for which they are intended—that print on the paper to be used—that fully reproduce the original drawings or photographs—and are delivered when asked for; it is because of this "plus" service we are retaining our old friends and making many new friends.
